NATIONS VOTE UNANIMOUSLY FOR EXPULSION

Finland, China, Yugoslavia and Greece Abstain From Casting Ballot on Ouster.

INVASION CONDEMNED

European Countries Prepare to Rush Material Aid to Finnish People.

(By Associated Press)

GENEVA—The League of Nations, by unanimous vote of its council, today expelled Soviet Russia because of her invasion of Finland.

Finland, China, Yugoslavia and Greece were said to have abstained from voting on the expulsion resolution.

The vote was on a resolution which declared that as a result of Russia's actions toward Finland "the U. S. S. R no longer is a member of the league."

Unanimous vote of the council is necessary to expel a member. Abstentions do not affect unanimity.

This was the first time in league history that a nation had been expelled.

The council move to expel Russia followed action by the assembly condemning Russian aggression and asking members to aid Finland.

The text of the council resolution read:

"The council having taken cognizance of the resolution adopted by the assembly Dec. 14 regarding the appeal of Finnish government

"First, associates itself with the condemnation by the assembly of the action of the U. S. S. R. against the Finnish state, and,

"Second, for reasons set forth in the resolution of the assembly by virtue of article 16, paragraph four of the covenant,

"Finds that by its act the U. S. S. R. has placed itself outside the League of Nations.

"It follows that the U. S. S. R. no longer is a member of the league."

Mexico first had been listed among the abstainers in the voting. The Mexican delegate said,

O.S.R. Fugitive Returned From Indiana; Escaped in 1930.

An Ohio State reformatory inmate who escaped nearly 10 years ago was back in the institution today with two additional years to serve as penalty for his escape. He was returned yesterday from Indianapolis, Ind. by reformatory guards.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said the fugitive was William Lynch, 37, of Cuyahoga county, who escaped from the reformatory dormitory on Feb. 24, 1930.

Lynch was arrested on charges of suspicion by Indiana authorities and he was identified as a fugitive through fingerprint records.

He was sentenced to the reformatory July 2, 1925 to serve a one to seven years for grand larceny.

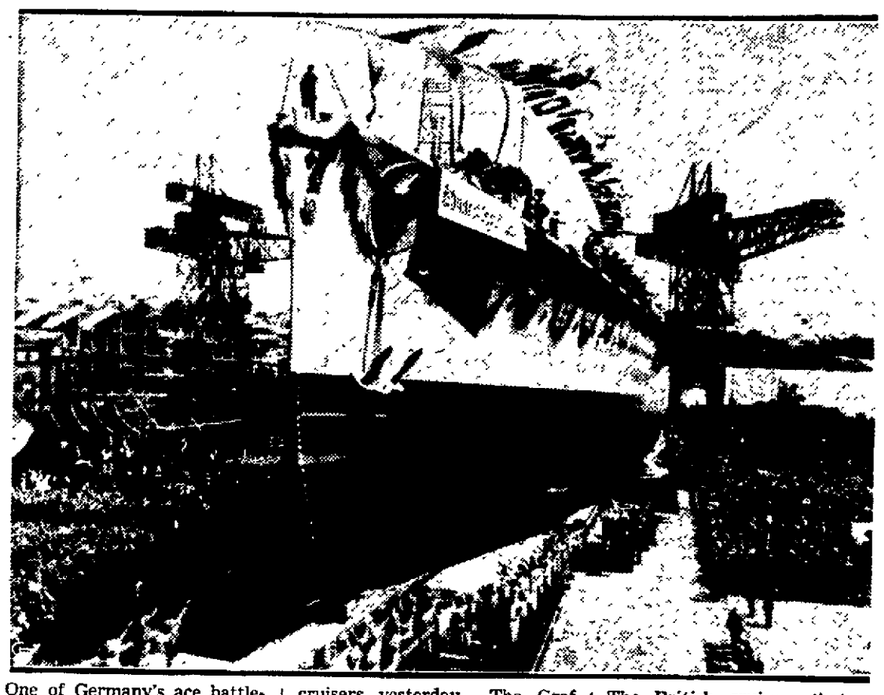
Nazi Sea Raider That British Drove Into Port



One of Germany's ace battleships, the Graf Spee, was in the neutral harbor of Montevideo, Uruguay, today, badly battered and with 36 of her crew dead as the result of a running 14-hour sea fight with three British cruisers yesterday. The Graf Spee, shown above as it was launched five years ago, was named after the famous German sea leader who lost his life in the British victory at Falkland Islands during the World war. The British cruisers that engaged the Graf Spee were the Ajax, Exeter and Achilles. The Exeter, which was put out of commission after four hours of fighting, limped into another neutral port near Montevideo.

BACKS PLAN FOR T. B. HOSPITAL

Farm Bureau Leader Endorses County Proposal to Buy Thomas Sanitarium.

Representatives of the Richland county farm bureau today indicated that organization will back the county commissioners in their plan to purchase the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium or "some other permanent structure" for a county tuberculosis hospital.

Neil Robinson, chairman of the farm bureau legislative committee, said a resolution favoring purchase of the sanitarium was drawn up at a meeting last night and approved by the committee.

He predicted approval of the resolution by the farm organization when it is submitted to the group early in January.

Robinson informed the commissioners of the resolution today, he said, "because we want them to know how the farm bureau feels about the matter."

Asserting that "we appreciate the interest the farm bureau has shown," C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, said a meeting with the county T. B. advisory committee will be called within a few days to "work out something definite in regard to purchase of a hospital."

The county will set up a new T. B. program in 1940 with funds provided by a half-mill levy passed last year. The levy will produce $45,000 a year for care of needy tubercular patients.

MERCURY STAYS BELOW FREEZING

Temperature at 26 But It's One of Coldest Days of Season.

Hesitant winter settled over Mansfield today, giving the city one of the coldest days of the season.

Although the mercury fell only to 26 degrees this morning it had climbed only two degrees by noon and the day's average promised to be well below freezing.

The weatherman forecast fair and slightly colder weather tonight, followed by increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer tomorrow.

'Gone With the Wind' Premier Rekindles Fires of Tradition—Oldsters to Relive Days of War.

ADAIRSVILLE, Ga.—(INS)—All passengers, including Laura Crews, who played the part of "Aunt Pittypat," in the movie version of "Gone With the Wind," escaped injury today when the diner, a pullman and observation car on the Dixie limited, a fast N. C. and St. L. passenger train, was derailed north of Adairsville.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Atlanta is ablaze again today. This time not from Sherman's torch, but from the fires of tradition rekindled by the world premier of Gone With the Wind.

The new south is the old south, even if just for a day, and one can almost hear the wind rustling through the magnolia and the dogwood where the biggest buildings stand. Through the magic medium of heritage, Atlanta has been able to dwarf herself . . . her bustling, progressive, 20th century self . . . into the slow and red-clay-streeted town of Antebellum time.

The fires are flaming in every heart. At the Confederate Soldiers' home, six old men, who faced the grapeshot in the siege of Atlanta, shined buttons on faded uniforms of gray.

Four of them, none of whom is under 92, will march under the Bars and Stars to front row seats when the Hollywood version of Margaret Mitchell's Gone With the Wind is put on the screen tomorrow night.

One of them, J. A. Skelton, who was at Big Shanty when Andrews' raiders stole a railroad engine and attempted to cut the southern line of communication, has never seen

GETS U. S. JOB

Ideal Electric Firm Awarded $96,822 Motors Contract.

The Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company has been awarded a government contract of $96,822 for electric motors for the New London, Conn., naval submarine base, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington today.

S. Glenn Vinson, president of Ideal Electric said his company had bid on the naval contract, but that he has not been notified by the government that the contract had been let.

The Mansfield plant has made the electric motors for the government for years and has installed them in a number of the big navy ships. The new contract calls for motor generator sets and switchboards.

Mayor Calls On City To Mark 'Finland Day' As Fund Grows

As Mansfield's contribution to the Finnish Relief Fund continued to grow today, the city was asked to observe Sunday as "Finland Day" in a proclamation issued by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

Churches will be requested to cooperate in recognition of the day, Mayor Hunter said. He has asked ministers and congregations to pray for the preservation of the little republic and to give what they can within the next few days to the relief fund.

"Bitterly do we American citizens feel the invasion of a sister republic" he said in his proclamation, "a republic that has patterned itself after our own, a republic that has lived since its founding in peace and in progress. Now Finland is engaged in a war against its will, bravely fighting against insurmountable odds to preserve the philosophy of her republic. . . . And I ask the people of this city to observe Sunday as Finland Day, and to appeal on that day for divine protection for the war-locked non-belligerents in the Finnish republic . . . and in the days that follow to give according to their ability."

2 GROUPS URGE COUNCIL TO OK CROSSING PLAN

Auto Club and C. of C. Throw Weight Behind Proposed W. Fourth Project.

CALLS JOB 'MUCH NEEDED'

Council Decides Tonight If It Will Appropriate $8,500 More for City's Share.

With council meeting in special session tonight to consider the revised financing plan for the Route 30-N grade separation project, two organization threw their weight behind the undertaking today.

They were the Richland County Automobile club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter already has announced that he will urge council to approve the proposal, submitted by the state highway department. The department's plan increases the city's share of the cost from $21,500 to $30,000.

Thus, if council approves the new plan, it will have to vote an additional $8,500 for the work. The $21,000 appropriation was set up several weeks ago.

Calls For Overhead.

The petition of the Chamber of Commerce urging acceptance of the new state offer asserts the project is a "much-needed" improvement. It calls for an overhead crossing of the B. and O. tracks at the western edge of the city on Route 30-N, which is over West Fourth street, and an underpass at the Erie tracks, farther west.

The Automobile club communication asserts that it would be "false economy" for the city to turn down the improvement and thus kill the proffered funds allocated by the state and federal governments.

The entire undertaking is estimated to cost slightly over $500,000. The state has asked the county government for $40,000 in addition to the request for $30,000 from the city. Previously it had asked the county to pay $50,000 of the cost, but after protests from the commissioners, reduced the county share by $10,000 and increased the city's share of the cost.

Blizzard-Tossed Waves Wash Liner's Victims Ashore.

WAKKANAI, HOKKAIDO, JAPAN —(AP)— Bodies of about 350 persons, half those believed lost in the blizzard-tossed wreck of the Soviet Russian steamer Indigirka, drifted ashore today.

Four hundred twenty survivors were taken by the Japanese ship Karafuto Maru to Otaru, Hokkaido, where local officials arranged for their relief.

The Russian ship, driven ashore during a storm, had about 1,100 persons aboard, mostly Russian fishermen and their families.

The 19-year-old, 2,690-ton ship originally was the American Commercial Quaker. It was sold to Russia in 1938 and placed in the fishing service.

SHELL-BATTERED SEA RAIDER DRIVEN INTO HAVEN WITH 36 DEAD

Vessel Which Germany Built To Outrun Any Other Warship Afloat, Limps To Port After Dramatic, 14-Hour Battle Ends; Two British Cruisers Stand Guard At Harbor To Block Escape; Britain Also Suffers Casualties.

(By Associated Press)

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay—The German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, her steel rent by British guns and 36 of her crew dead, clung to her refuge today in this neutral port while two of the three British cruisers which engaged her in a 14-hour running battle yesterday mounted guard out at sea.

The third cruiser, the crippled Exeter, which was knocked out of the fight after four hours of cannonading, limped into the Rio De La Plata to a position 12 miles off Montevideo.

As British legation officials sailed out to board her, reports were current there were many dead and wounded aboard the cruiser but nothing official had been issued on casualties either among the crews of the Exeter or her fellow fighters, the Achilles and the Ajax, all of which were damaged.

Internment for the duration of the European war seemed the only prospect for the warship which Germany in the days of naval limitation built to outrun or outgun any other warship afloat. Her other choice would be a desperate gamble at escape after repairs.

Besides the 36 Germans killed, the casualties included 60 wounded in the crew which normally totals 926.

Otto Langmann, German minister to Uruguay, visited the vessel and renewed charges that crewmen were suffering from lung and eye injuries resulting from gas shells fired by the British.

(The admiralty in London and Prime Minister Chamberlain before the house of commons denied as entirely without foundation German allegations that mustard gas grenades or shells had been used.)

Far into the night she lay at anchor, potential target of the guns of the cruisers Ajax and Achilles which were scarcely cool from yesterday's battle.

With dawn, however, the British ships had moved out of the Montevideo roads and were not visible within two and a half hours sailing.

It was presumed that the British warships merely had withdrawn to points outside territorial waters off the broad mouth of Rio De La Plata.

Daylight permitted closer inspection of the Admiral Graf Spee's wounds—two large holes in the bridge area, another astern and a fourth at the bow, as well as slighter damage from shellfire along her starboard above the waterline, particularly in the engine room area.

The wounded crewmen remained aboard, except for two gravely injured seamen who were taken to a military hospital.

WHEAT PASSES $1 FOR FIRST TIME IN 2 YEARS

Farmers Market Thousands of Bushels as War, Outlook for '40 Hike Prices.

Richland county farmers began marketing thousands of bushels of their stored wheat today as the price passed $1 a bushel for the first time in more than two years.

Up five cents since yesterday, No. 1 wheat was selling for $1.01 in Mansfield today while No. 2 grain was a cent lower.

Grain that had been held since last July for better market began to pour into county elevators and one Mansfield miller said he expected to handle from 2,000 to 3,000 bushels today. Daily receipts during the past week have ranged from 15 to 100 bushels, he said.

The European war is directly responsible for the price boost, J. O. Hanley of the Hanley Milling company said, but also contributing to the gain is the outlook for a poor wheat crop in 1940 because of a severe drought in the southwest and western wheat belts.

Sees Surplus Consumed.

"Regardless of the war, the wheat surplus will be consumed and the nation's market will soon be back on a cash-and-carry basis," Hanley said.

Removal of the fixed price on wheat by the Winnipeg and Argentine markets resulted in the five-cent increase today, since those markets controlled the United States market, it was said.

Today's price was almost double the figure six months ago when wheat brought only 58 cents a bushel in Mansfield. The present market is the highest since 1937 when wheat went up to $1.17.

Pinned Against Pole By Car, His Cries Bring Help

Startled from their sleep before dawn this morning by cries of "Help," residents of South Mulberry street summoned police to the rescue of Fred Ruffer, R. D. 2, who was pinned between a milk truck and a utility pole.

Ruffer, a driver for the Isaly Dairy company, had stopped his truck at the curb to make a delivery in the vicinity of Glessner avenue.

The truck started to roll down a slight grade, and Ruffer slipped from the running board, as he attempted to stop its motion. He fell and was pinned against a pole by the truck as it backed over the curb. Unable to move, he yelled for help and wakened sleeping residents.

Police took him to General hospital, where it was found that he had escaped with only a bruised leg.

GALLANTRY: British Seamen Lauded For Stopping Raider

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today that "the gallant action" of "three comparatively small British ships against a much more heavily armed adversary" probably would free the south Atlantic from depredations of the German raider Admiral Graf Spee.

Lauding the League of Nations' action in condemning Russia for the invasion of Finland, Chamberlain told the house of commons that "Germany alone among the nations even now is abetting by word and deed the Russian aggression."

"We must give what help and support we can to the latest victim of these destructive forces," the prime minister said.

"But meanwhile it is only by concentrating on our task of resistance to German aggression and thus attacking the evil at its root that we can hope to save the nations of Europe from the fate which otherwise must overtake them."

He told the house that a battle of "severe character" had been fought in the south Atlantic between the Admiral Graf Spee and the British cruisers Exeter, Ajax and Achilles.

In his final war review before parliament's Christmas recess Chamberlain declared that "the SEA CRASH: British Destroyer Sinks After Collision, 120 Dead

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The admiralty reported today the British destroyer Duchess had collided with another warship and sunk with an indicated loss of 120 lives.

Only three blows—all dealt by Germany—have been more disastrous to the British navy since the outbreak of the war.

They were the sinking of the aircraft carrier Courageous with a loss of 578 men, the battleship Royal Oak with 786 men and the armed merchantman Rawalpindi with 265 men.

Details of where or how the collision occurred were not given but it was disclosed that it happened yesterday.

The admiralty said the other ship, which was not immediately identified, was undamaged.

Only one officer and 22 men were saved, it said. The Duchess was commanded by Lieut. Commander R. C. H. White.

The Duchess was a warship of 1,375 tons in the defender class and was completed Jan. 24, 1933. She carried a normal complement of 145 men.

It was believed possible the Duchess may have carried a larger than normal crew because of war duty.

News of the disaster came as victories against German naval power in the North sea and south Atlantic were being marked, the latter against the German pocket battleship Graf Spee.

Britain also revealed that the 202-ton mine-sweeping trawler William Hallett sank today with the loss of eight lives after striking a mine. The vessel was the sixth British minesweeper lost during the war with total casualties of 67.

LEAGUE OUSTS SOVIET; HITS FINN INVASION

Finland, China, Yugoslavia and Greece Abstain From Casting Ballot on Vote.

however, that he had cast a ballot, but that if he had been in the council voting on the ouster move he would have been forced to abstain.

Egypt and China were elected members of the new council by 37 votes and 34 votes, respectively.

After the vote against Russia the assembly received Finnish thanks.

Finland's delegate, the white-haired Rudolf Holsti, walked to the tribune amid loud applause to express the Finnish people's "profound gratitude."

He said the amount of practical aid which Finland would get from the assembly's action depended upon the capacity of the League's coordinating staff and the cooperation of the civilized world with that staff.

Before the assembly vote, Great Britain informed the League she already was "taking steps to enable the Finnish government to obtain the material required for their defenses in England."

The assembly adjourned at 7:10 a. m. (Mansfield time).

The Council, however, decided in a private meeting to maintain the two seats on the council previously held by China and Latvia.

Therefore, the assembly was summoned back for a session at 3:30 (9:30 a. m.) and was expected to complete the council by electing Egypt and re-electing China. A second session was scheduled for a half hour later.

China, contrary to previous arrangements, would have a chance to vote against the Russian ouster move. But after her abstention in the assembly she was expected to abstain as well in the council, where unanimity is required.

R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs said, "The assembly (of the League) may rest assured that despite the heavy burden which we in the United Kingdom, in common with other nations of the British commonwealth, and our allies, are bearing at the present time in the major struggle for right and law in which we are engaged, his majesty's government will not thereby excuse themselves from giving the best assistance in their power to Finland.

As the League of Nations seemed reasonably certain to expel Soviet Russia for invading Finland, high diplomatic quarters suggested foreign troops idling in allied armies might become fighting volunteers for the Finns.

The idea of an international brigade for Finland, similar to that which Moscow supported in Republican Spain, began to leak out of league corridor conversations.

France would be the main source of such volunteers, as she is host to Polish and Czech units and many other foreign fighting men in addition to her own foreign legion.

The French were reported to be listening with interest.

Military sources said they were eager to find a wide open battleground in their war with Germany, and that the Baltic states and western Russia might be viewed in Paris and London as the longest but easiest way around Germany's Siegfried line.

French Delegate Joseph Paul-Boncour was reported already to have informed his government of the volunteer idea.

Red Advance Nears Norwegian Border.

KIRKENES, Norway (At the Finnish Frontier) —(AP)— Russian troops, advancing rapidly through the Petsamo district, are approaching Salmijarvi near the Norwegian frontier and the Finns seem to be preparing to withdraw from that town to defense lines further south.

Salmijarvi and four other towns in the region—Kolosjcki, Tullevi, Koivolahti and Kovoranta all were ablaze today.

Though Finland at this point is scarcely 30 miles wide, it could not be clearly discerned how far the Russian troops have advanced.

It was uncertain whether the burning towns had been fired by retreating Finns or by Russian bombers.

Say Finns Ready to Start Counter-Attacks.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM — (LP) — The Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet reported in dispatches from Torneaa, Finland, today that Finnish troops had killed thousands of Russians in the "bloodiest battle of the war" at Salla in northern Finland. The Finns, according to Aftonbladet, recaptured Salla.

HELSINKI—(AP)—Military observers reported the Finns were in position today to organize counter-attacks after stopping the Soviet Russian invasion on the Karelian isthmus.

A Finnish army communique reported last night the Red army had been brought to a standstill, and that fighting on the isthmus was localized.

On the eastern or middle front, the Finns said the Russians continued fierce attacks but that counter-attacks cost the Rusisans "great losses." Five Russian tanks, five anti-tank guns, four field guns and many machine guns were reported captured.

A Russian communique from headquarters of the Leningrad military area said an advance of between 65 and 66 miles into Finland had been made on the eastern front. This would indicate a push of about 20 miles beyond Markajarvi, where the Russians were reported Tuesday.

GERMAN RAIDER WHIPPED BY 3 BRITISH SHIPS

Shell-Battered 'Graf Spee' Driven to Port With 36 of Her Crew Dead.

Montevideo officials said early this morning that no steps had been taken toward internment of the Admiral Graf Spee.

Uruguayans who boarded the battleship said the only persons aboard beyond the regular crew were two German merchant captains whose knowledge of the South American coastline had served the Admiral Graf Spee.

The extent of the British casualties remained unknown. There had been no British attempt to land dead or wounded on the Uruguayan coast.

Reports that many had been killed and wounded among the cruiser Exeter's crew — normally about 600 men — were without verification.

Uncertainty over the whereabouts of the cruiser Exeter was dispelled today when the warship nosed into the Rio De La Plata to a position 12 miles from Montevideo and the anchorage of the German battleship.

Apparently the Exeter, 1,500 miles from her Falklands island base, was seeking to make emergency repairs here. Officials from the British legation boarded her from a tug to survey her damage and gain a first-hand account of the battle.

Speedier Ship.

The Admiral Graf Spee in all is 22,405 tons of speedier naval power against the larger guns of the 10,000-ton pocket battleship.

The Exeter, 8,390 tons, was in the battle for only four hours before the 11-inch guns of the German warship knocked her out of action.

The 7,030-ton Achilles and the 6,985-ton Ajax hounded the Admiral Graf Spee for the entire 14 hours—from 6 a. m., E.S.T., until after 8 p. m.—their six and eight-inch guns almost constantly ablaze.

Reports were current that the Exeter also was a veritable funeral ship, carrying many killed and wounded to some unspecified base.

Shortly after midnight the German minister to Uruguay, Otto Langmann, and his staff had gone aboard the Admiral Graf Spee to check the damage and casualties, and was expected to request the Uruguayan government to intern the vessel.

It was the envoy who made the first official announcement of the warship's identity. This was a surprise for there had been no hint that the Admiral Graf Spee had joined her sister ships the Deutschland and Admiral Scheer in Atlantic raiding.

The Admiral Graf Spee had not been mentioned in European war reports since the British-German dispute over whether she had been hit in the British air raid on Germany's Kiel base Sept. 4, the second day of the war.

The damage to the Admiral Graf Spee was such as to forbid her sailing within 24 hours—unless she chose to fall easy prey to her waiting British foe.

Under international law the battleship was privileged to lay up for repairs but must leave the neutral port within 24 hours after they are completed—or be interned.

The engagement — the greatest naval encounter of the war thus far—occurred within the American neutrality belt and much of it could be seen from the Uruguayan shore. Observers and radio stations gave Uruguayans a virtual round-by-round account of daylight portions of the fight.

(Informed circles at Washington believed no issue would be raised over the fact that the encounter took place within the Pan-American neutrality zone. It was pointed out that the zone was designed to prevent belligerent activities harmful to American interests.)

The Admiral Graf Spee touched off the battle when she came upon the Cruiser Ajax just after dawn yesterday. The British warship was convoying the French merchantman Formosa from Brazil to Uruguay.

Rushes Into Battle.

The German vessel rushed into battle, her heavy guns blazing. The French freighter slipped away to safety. The Ajax returned the German fire with her six-inch guns, momentarily repulsing the attacker and at the same time summoning the Achilles and Exeter.

Quickly the Germans found the tables turned with their 26-knot battleship harrassed by three faster but lighter-armed British ships. The Ajax and Achilles make 32.5 knots, the Exeter 32.

The Admiral Graf Spee apparently found the Exeter's eight-inch guns particularly damaging for she turned her back on her other attackers to concentrate volley after volley on the Exeter, heaviest of the three British men o'war.

This concentration of fire put the Exeter out of the battle after four hours, her armor—from two to three inches thick—battered by the German shells. But the diversion benefitted the other two British ships.

The six-inch guns of the Achilles and Ajax were more than a match for the 11-inch weapons of the Admiral Graf Spee and she squirmed to escape. Observers at Punta Del Este lighthouse on the Uruguayan shore saw the pocket battleship steam away to the southwest but the Achilles and Ajax were at her heels, relentlessly firing.

Nazi Liner Columbus Seeks to Duck Blockade.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico — (AP)— The 32,581-ton German liner Columbus slipped out of Vera Cruz in the darkness early today on what was an apparent attempt to run the Atlantic and reach a German or neutral port through the allied naval blockade.

The big North German Lloyd ship, a rich war prize if captured or sunk, was reported fully prepared for an attempt to reach Oslo, Norway.

A severe tropical storm, which prevented the German consul here from delivering the final clearance papers to the Columbus, was said to explain why she failed to slip away earlier.

Because of persistent rumors of British warships in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea she had been expected to sail as secretly and with as little forewarning as possible.

Guests of Gable.

Skelton, along with veteran J. R. Jones, will attend the premier as guests of the star, Clark Gable.

Clear across town from the soldiers' home, in the tall-columned houses of Peachtree road, debs and sub-debs pulled at the laces of bone corsets in the hope of reducing their waists to the inch-line of Scarlett O'Hara. Down from attics came old gowns worn by grandmothers and great-aunts. Out of trunks, reeking of moth balls, came hats and gloves. Because tonight, at the junior league ball in the mammoth auditorium, the ball room of Tara hall will come to life. The dresses that waltzed and polkaed once, will swing and sway to the hot music of Kay Kyser.

Tickets for this ball, the proceeds of which will go to the community chest as will the "gate" of the premier, are being peddled by scalpers for as high as $35 a seat. The original price was $3.35.

In the Georgian Terrace hotel, protected by armed guards who shooed away the curious, were Vivian Leigh, the English girl who gained the coveted role of Scarlett, Lawrence Olivier, her fiance; Olivia De Havilland, who plays Melanie; Ann Rutherford, Ona Munson and lesser lights.

Some time today—and he must dread the moment—Clark Gable will arrive by plane. All he has to face, right off the bat, is a parade through the heart of the city and a reception that is limited to half the voters of Georgia. If he doesn't wear a suit of armor the chances are, as one cracker admirer expresed it, he will be torn 'limb to limb'.

Finnish army has proved itself by far the better fighting force in anything but numbers."

Enlarging on the Finnish-Russian conflict, the prime minister added:

"It is too soon to attempt any forecast of the outcome of this unequal struggle but its political consequences already have been far-reaching."

He asserted Russian aggression "had outraged the conscience of the whole world."

"Nevertheless," Chamberlain continued, "the German government have publicly ranged themselves on the side of an aggressor whom they have even attempted to assist by a scurrilous and violent campaign against other Scandinavian countries for their moral support of the Finnish cause."

Attacked When Sinking 2 Ships, Germans Say.

BERLIN — (AP) — The German high command asserted today that the German pocket battleship Graf Spee was sinking the British merchantmen Tairoa and Streons Hall when she was encountered by three British cruisers in the South Atlantic yesterday.

Authorized sources at the same time vigorously denied that the Graf Spee would be interned in Montevicdo, where it went after being damaged in the sea battle.

These sources said the ship went to Montevideo merely to bury 36 dead seamen and to provide hospital treatment for gassed and wounded men and replenish victuals damaged by mustard gas which the British were accused of using.

(The British admiralty today denied that the British navy was using gas.)

The high command announced: "The Admiral Graf Spee, one of the ships operating in Atlantic waters since the outbreak of war, met and sank on the convoy route between La Plata and European waters the English merchantmen Tairoa, (7,983 tons) and Streonshall (3,895 tons).

"The Graf Spee encountered in this action the English heavy cruiser Exeter and the light cruisers Ajax and Achilles. During the engagement, the ship was able to severely damage the more numerous enemy craft.

"The Exeter had to withdraw from the fight after heavy hits. One of the light cruisers likewise was severely damaged.

"The battleship Graf Spee received some hits. For the moment the ship is in the harbor at Montevideo.

San Jose to Stage 'Prune Bowl' Game.

SAN JOSE, Cal.—(NS)—Boosters of a Prune Bowl game, featuring undefeated and untied San Jose State Spartans, launched a $5,000 fund-raising campaign today. Coach Dud De Groot, meantime, was to poll the team to learn if it favored the post-season contest on Christmas day against either undefeated Colorado Mines or Mississippi State.

City League Cagers Lift Lid Tonight

Blue Goose Faces Shelley Team, Yuncker Sports Meet Westinghouse at High School.

THE CHASE TO dethrone the Yuncker Sports as champions of the City Class A league will get under way at Mansfield high school at 7:30 p. m. today.

Opening the first program of the new season will be a game between the Blue Goose All-Stars and Shelley's Chocolates, and this meeting should produce a first-class brand of basketball.

The Yuncker quintet will engage the Westinghouse plant representatives in the other game, which is expected to hit the boards at about 8:30.

* * *

These two games are expected to determine the teams which will figure as the Sports' most dangerous rivals.

* * *

Of course, if the Sports lose—and they might, too—this season's race will probably develop into one of the tightest ever staged in the circuit.

The personnel of the Westinghouse club has not been revealed, but Coach George Percy is said to have a stronger team than last year when it chased the Sports to the wire.

Al Stickler and John Reese, mainstays of the 1938-39 quintet, form the nucleus for this season's Yuncker club, and there are few—if any—better ball players in the league.

If a capable supporting cast has been obtained for this pair, the Yuncker club will again be dangerous.

* * *

Shelley's new edition lacks the height of the Yuncker and Westinghouse teams, but it has speed. Freddy Lewis, Noel Morgan and Bob Boyd are good ball handlers, and, with Elmer Dials doing the rebound work, the Chocolates should be tough.

* * *

The same can be said for the Blue Goose entry, which also is small in stature. Tom Farrell, veteran City league center, is the giant in the Blue Goose lineup. Bill Moritz is no midget, either, but the majority of the players are small and fast.

In a poll taken today, the league managers selected John Burnison, Galion high coach, as referee this season.

Lemunyon, Funston Set Pace

Roll Respective Totals of 668, 662 to Lead Scoring In City A League.

HAROLD LEMUNYON and the Ingram & Martin Oldsmobiles held the spotlight in the City Class A league at the Meder alleys last night.

Rolling scores of 233, 202 and 233 for a 668, Lemunyon paced the individuals and led the Oldsmobiles to a high 2975 count. The Automen compiled scores of 1033, 982 and 960 as they swept their series with the Greystone Nite club, led by Ed Meder's 630.

* * *

Gene Funston was not far behind Lemunyon in the individual scoring battle with a 662 count, which he opened with a rousing 245 and followed with a 193 and 224. Funston led his All-Stars to a 1020 game and another even 1000 as they took two decisions from the Pontiacs.

* * *

Here's One Way To Score

Madison Beaten By Red Birds

Rams Unable to Overcome Lead Obtained by Loudonville in First Period.

TWICE this season the Madison high Rams have gone outside the Richland county basketball league to meet rivals and have returned with a like number of defeats.

* * *

The latest setback came last night when the Red Birds of Loudonville high invaded the Madison court to hand the Rams a 34 to 16 beating. Ashland high defeated the Rams recently in the other game.

* * *

With Cain pacing the attack, the Loudonville combine moved into a commanding lead in the first period and the Rams were unable to overcome that advantage.

Coach Al Fendrick's proteges found it almost impossible to locate the basket and as a result scored only one goal the opening half. In the second period Madison battled the Ashland county outfit on even terms, each club tallying four points.

* * *

Loudonville was leading, 12 to 3 in the first period, 16 to 7 at the intermission and 26 to 12 going into the final quarter. Cain was high-point man for the evening with 15 markers, while Bill Heichel led the Rams with six points. Incidentally, he was the only Ram player to garner more than one basket.

* * *

The Loudonville seconds handed the Madison reserves a 15 to 14 defeat in a nip-and-tuck preliminary contest.

Parker Hall Only Ram On U-P All-Pro Eleven

Cleveland Halfback Named No. 1 Player of Year; Leemans, Farkas and Osmanski In Backfield.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Take the whole country from coast to coast and pick the 11 best players—lump every All-American team picked and get the consensus—use any formula you wish but unless you delve into the National football league you still haven't got the best bunch of football players in the land.

The creme de la creme of the gridiron is named today by the United Press—the 1939 all-professional team. Before you think you can name a better club, remember you'll have to have a passer who completes every other pass thrown, a fullback who cracks off 5.9 yards a crack, a pair of halfbacks good for nearly four yards every time they start out on a journey, a punter who averages over 40 yards, an end who requires two men to cover him, a guard who can run as fast as a halfback. That just gives you an idea.

* * *

The all-pro backfield is made up of Parker Hall, Cleveland; Tuffy Leemans, New York; Andy Farkas, Washington, and Bill Osmanski, Chicago Bears. It can do everything but knit and take care of the baby.

* * *

Hall, a rookie from the U. of Mississippi, is the league's No. 1 player of the year. He can pass, run and kick and that's putting it mildly. He completed 106 out of 208 passes for 1,227 yards and nine touchdowns. He was fifth in yardage gained, 458 yards in 120 attempts and was one of the league's best punters.

The two halfbacks, Leemans and Farkas, are break away runners capable of getting away for a touchdown from any spot on the field. Leemans, famed for wriggling out of tacklers' arms and running away, gained 429 yards in 128 attempts for a 3.3 average and Farkas, a power-runner, gained

Feminine Grapplers Share Top Billing

Stage Title Bout on Armory Card Including Reynolds-Higami Match Tonight.

TOPPED BY A PAIR of promising bouts, the Quality club will offer another all-star mat attraction in the Armory tonight. Sharing honors in the billing will be Davey Reynold's important light-heavyweight tangle with Tetsura Higami of Japan and Mildred Burke's defense of the feminine championship against Gladys "Killem" Gillem.

Picking the most attractive bout of the two is like attempting a field goal from your own three-yard line. No sane quarterback would call for it.

In a similar vein, both of tonight's contests have their points and, in the final analysis, it will be "six of one and a half-dozen of the other."

* * *

Miss Gillem "backed" into the titlematch on a defeat at the hands of Princess Rose White Cloud. It came by the disqualification route, however, and the Indian lassie took a bad physical lacing before the referee handed her the verdict.

* * *

The Princess is currently threatening to claim the title if Miss Gillem wins tonight and if the "no foul" rule is adhered to—she may be able to do it. At any rate, the issue will be decided in one fall, with a 60-minute time limit.

Reynolds and Higami, who will offer a contrast in the mat styles of the orient and occident, should provide fans with one of the fastest frays ever witnessed here. They are scheduled for two falls, with a 90-minute time limit, and "mat dynamite" should be unloaded with a bang before a winner has been established.

Opening tonight's card at 8:30 is a one-fall, 30-minute time limit bout between the Masked Marvel and Bob Blake of Columbus.

DEMAND CONN BOUT.

CLEVELAND —(NS)—Al Hostak, champion middleweight blaster, will not fight Cerefino Garcia until he gets a bout with Billy Conn, his manager, Eddie Marino made clear today.

Toledo Takes Double-Header

Whips Defiance, Albion for Second Twin-Bill Sweep.

(By Associated Press)

The University of Toledo is piling up basketball victories twice as fast as other Ohio teams by the simple procedure of winning double-headers.

The Rockets won their second twin bill last night by stopping Defiance, 51 to 16, and Albion (Mich.) 47 to 41. Last week they beat Hillsdale (Mich.) and Findlay. Three more doubleheaders are scheduled.

* * *

Toledo had little trouble with Defiance after amassing a 19 to 3 half-time lead. Albion provided stiffer opposition and held an 11 to 7 margin early in the game. Bob Gerber, Rocket center, scored 17 points in the Albion tussle.

In the only Ohio conference game of the night Denison trampled Kenyon, 56 to 35. Wittenberg stopped Lafayette at Easton, Pa., 47 to 31; Alfred Holbrook lost to Washington & Lee at Lexington, Va., 31 to 27; Ohio Northern walloped Giffin at Ada, 55 to 17; and Hanover beat Cincinnati, 57 to 41, at Hanover, Ind.

Ohio Opens Season Tonight Minus Three Veterans.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— A "question mark" Ohio State basketball team opens the season minus three veteran stars tonight against a none-to-strong Wabash college five in the state fairgrounds coliseum.

* * *

Two and possibly three sophomores will be in the starting Buckeye lineup due to the absence of Captain Bob Lynch, guard; Forward John Schick and Center Bill Sattler, mainstays of last year's Big Ten title squad. Schick and Sattler are scholastically ineligible until next week while Lynch is looking for a spare-time job.

The starting Ohio State five will be Dick Fisher and Gil Mickelson, forwards; Don Scott or Jack McClain, center; Jack Graf and Jack Dawson, guards.

BROOKS LEADS KNOCKERS TO WIN OVER BOMBERS

Led by Brooks, who collected 19 points, the Knockers defeated the Bombers, 21 to 12, in an opening round game in the Range club basketball league at the Friendly House last night. In the other game, the Chargers topped the Aces, 18 to 13.

PLAY INDOOR FOOTBALL

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Cleveland will get its first look at six-man indoor football Saturday night when the Akron Bantams play the Cleveland Bantams at the equestrium.

547 yards in 130 attempts for a 3.9 average. John Drake of Cleveland was named a second team halfback.

Osmanski led the league in ground gained, rushing with 606 yards in 121 attempts for a 5.7 average. Also a regular Osmanski was good enough to take the Bears No. 1 fullback job away from Joe Maniaci who averaged seven yards every time he carried the ball.

Mairstay of the line again was Mel Hein, New York Giant center, who made the first team for the ninth consecutive year.

The two guards are Joe Fortmann, Chicago Bears, a holdover from last year's team and Jean Wiethe, Detroit, a newcomer. Both are speedy and aggressive and stars at leading interference.

Joe Stydahar, Chicago Bears, again was the league's best tackle. Jim Barber, Washington, was given the other tackle berth by a slight nod over Bruiser Kinard, Brooklyn.

Don Hutson, Green Bay's great pass catcher, and Jim Poole, the Giants' defensive star, won the end berths without an argument. Hutson, who holds or shares every pass catching record in the league, grabbed 34 passes this season for a total of 846 yards and six touchdowns. It takes two men and sometimes more to stop Don Poole, a fine receiver, blocked three punts the past season and is a standout on defense.

Coach of Year

Dr. Eddie Anderson, above, of Iowa, selected coach of the year in a nation-wide poll of college coaches, today had the Jacob Ruppert memorial trophy in his collection. Nile Kinnick, Iowa's All-America back, and a host of coaches attended the presentation ceremony in New York City.

Fans Put OK on 'Ghost Basketball'

RIPLEY—(U.P.)—Although left completely in the dark last night, 800 fans enthusiastically agreed today that "ghost basketball" was the world's spookiest sport.

Copyrighted by Superintendent of Schools Dennis Potts, the game was played in total darkness, but players, ball, referee, baskets and sideline markings were made visible by a fluorescent paint. Two local teams battled to a 24-22 score and spectators said the game was as fast and as interesting as any played in full light.

Washington Runs Into First Place

SEATTLE—(AP)—It's so close there probably will be a recount, but Kenny Washington, the great colored halfback from the University of California at Los Angeles, ranks today as the nation's leading gridiron ground gainer of 1939.

Washington's sterling performance against Southern California last week sent him from third to first place just a scant nine yards ahead of Tom Harmon of Michigan, who in turn is just 14 yards ahead of Kay Eakin of Arkansas.

The blanket finish means a thorough recount, the American football statistical bureau, which compiled the figures, announced. The recheck will be made before the bureau announces its final, official figures. Washington—in 10 games he carried the ball 170 times, passed 90 times for a total of 260 plays; he gained 828 yards rushing and 537 passing for a total of 1,365 yards.

ASKED TO JOIN LOOP

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Cincinnati and Xavier university athletic officials today revealed they had been invited to attend a meeting called ostensibly to form a new athletic conference comprising Ohio and Indiana schools.

ISAACS HONORED

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Gene Isaacs, of Struthers, O., senior end, was named honorary captain of the 1939 Western Reserve football squad at the annual banquet last night. Twenty-nine players were awarded letters.

STOPS BASQUEZ

NEW YORK—Arthur Darrell, 143¾, Dallas, Tex., stopped Gilbert Basquez, 141½, Lima, Peru, (2).

Mayflower Rips Lutherans, 42-11

Defending Champions Take Opening Games of Sked Without Difficulty.

THE Mayflower Congregational basketeers apparently mean business again this year. The defending champions in the Y. M. C. A. Church Class A league opened their defense of the title in inaugural contests at the "Y" last night by defeating First Lutheran.

* * *

With three of the members scoring 10 or more points, the Mayflower combine smothered First Lutheran, 42 to 11, to win team scoring honors. Keplar led the attack with 12 points, while Russell added 11 and Botzer came in with 10 markers.

* * *

While the Mayflower quintet was having an easy time of it, the Park Avenue Baptist outfit staged a last-period rally to topple St. John's Evangelical, 28 to 22, and the First Methodist five turned back Central Methodist, 27 to 16.

* * *

The Baptist club, led by Rayburn, who tallied 12 points, was trailing 19 to 17 going into the last quarter. The winners outscored their rivals, 11-3, to emerge with the victory.

* * *

Mayflower and First Methodist chalked up early leads in registering their wins. Both clubs led all the way. Mayflower was ahead, 15-3 at the half, while Methodist held a 18 to 8 advantage.

YANKEES, GIANTS READY TO PLAN BROADCASTING

NEW YORK—(INS)—Baseball at the Polo Grounds and the Yankee stadium will be played next season without benefit of the air waves.

A long deadlock over efforts of sponsors to materially reduce the broadcasting fee is about to be ended with an announcement that the price is too high, it was learned today.

SEASON SHORTENED

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's coon hunting season will close Jan. 1 instead of Jan. 15, the state conservation and natural resources commission ruled today.

"In this envelope was a letter from your fiance, Mr. . . . He was too talkative and wrote of things which did not concern him, and for this reason we were obliged to destroy his letter.

"All the same, we wish to assure you that he is quite well and sends his loving greetings and many kisses.

PACE SLACKENS AFTER LIVELY MART OPENING

Early Gains Reduced as List Lacks Recovery Vigor; Commodities Down.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks climbed another notch or two in today's market, but the recovery vigor of Wednesday was lacking.

After a fairly lively opening, the pace slackened and initial gains running to about a point were reduced.

Prominent on the early push were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Western Union, American Telephone, U. S. Gypsum, Pennsylvania, Du Pont and American Can.

Speculators who rode commodities to new highs for the past two years cashed profits sufficiently to halt the upswing in most categories. Major staples, consequently, presented a moderately irregular appearance, with cotton, especially, losing a sizable slice of its recent advance.

Business and industrial hopefulness remained a sustaining influence for stocks. Bonds edged forward. Foreign securities markets were mixed.

Boardrooms scanned the summary of the Engineering News-Record for the week ended Tuesday disclosing construction awards throughout the country were off 30 per cent from a week ago and were 35 per cent below the volume for the corresponding 1938 period. The drop, however, was confined mainly to public building, private contracts topping last year by 67 per cent.

Ohio's Banks In Good Condition, Squire Declares

CINCINNATI —(UP)— Deposits in Ohio banks are approaching an historic peak and the banks themselves are in splendid condition and willing to make good loans, State Superintendent of Banks Samuel H. Squires told the Cincinnati Association of Credit Men's banking group last night.

Except for one instance, there has been no bank failures and no new banks have been chartered by the state in the past five years, Squire said. The one bank closed was due to criminal activities of an officer, he said, and was chartered to replace the institution in the community.

Deposits of all but 20 banks in Ohio are insured, Squire reported.

When Squire took office five years ago, he said, 168 banks were in liquidation; at the end of this year there will be only 10.

Depositors in the closed banks have been paid, on an average, 83.7 cents on the dollar, he said.

JAIL SUSPECT

CANTON, O.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Richard France reported today that Francis Walsh, 27, of Canton, had confessed participation in a Washington county bank robbery and a Guernsey county store holdup

Walsh was taken to Cambridge for further questioning, France said.

11-Month Figures Show Gains in All Trade and Industrial Barometers.

Marked improvements in business and industry has written a string of plus signs into Manfield's business chart for the first 11 months of 1939, Chamber of Commerce figures disclosed today.

Every one of the major business and industrial barometers registered substantial gains over the same period in 1938 with increases ranging from six per cent in postal receipts to 106 per cent in building valuations.

Reflecting the improvements in business and industry, the county's relief load entered the minus column, dropping 58 per cent under the total for the corresponding period last year.

The major factor in the upward sweep was the 31 per cent gain in industrial employment which put thousands of dollars more into the pockets of Mansfield workers. The report showed 10,673 persons employed by industry Nov 30 as compared with 8,200 in November, 1938.

Close behind was mercantile employment which was up nearly eight per cent for the 11-month period.

Building Heads Parade.

Heading the parade of gains was the city's construction activities which showed an increase of 106 per cent over the 1938 totals. Building permits issued so far this year have a total valuation of more than $2,000,000 while valuations at this time last year were approximately $900,000.

The second largest gain was in automobile registrations which were up 72 per cent.

Bank clearing increased 16 per cent and sales tax receipts increased more than 22 per cent. Car loading showed a 19 per cent gain over last year and bus fares increased 5 per cent.

LIMIT SEEN TO PLANES' SPEED

Human Body Unable to Stand Quick Changes, Science Writer Explains.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK — European air fighting has demonstrated that the human body itself probably will forever forbid more speed in some maneuvers already achieved by engineering science.

The human limit is amaurosis fugax. This is the medical term for sharp physical changes accompanying the loss of consciousness that aviators call blackout.

Amaurosis fugax appears in the power dives which some types of European bombers are reported making on warships and other objectives. It comes also in the turns of fighting ships trying to get their gunsights on a flying enemy.

The nature of amaurosis fugax is detailed in the proceedings of the Mayo clinic by R. B. Phillips, M. D., and Charles Sheard, Ph. D. Dr. Philips flew in American army planes to measure the effects on himself.

Speed itself is not the human barrier. There is no speed which will harm a human being provided it is uniform. The trouble comes in changes of direction at high speed, or in the periods when the plane is changing speed.

Change in direction comes during turns, which in the air may be in any direction. The plane flies in a circle, or part of a circle. During those moments, the human occupants are subjected to centrifugal force. The force is outward from the circle.

It is not the crushing weight itself that does the harm. For the weight is distributed. The pressure, however, affects the movable parts inside the body. These are principally the blood.

TUITION FEES INCREASED

GENEVA, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The cost of education is going up at Hobart and William Smith colleges. Effective next year, the total tuition bill for each student will be $427, and increase of $50. Higher living costs are given as the reason for the move.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1939.

It'll soon be time to sharpen the elbows for the final Christmas shopping rush.

According to H. G. Wells, "the human race is rushing to extinction"—and that can at least be said to apply to reckless motorists.

Will League of Nations Survive?

THE FINE IDEALISM of the League of Nations, which came into being with adoption of the Versailles treaty in 1920, has been proved ineffective in accomplishing the purposes for which it was designed.

It was "to promote international co-operation and to achieve international peace and security" that the League was formed, with an original membership of 42 nations, which grew to 60 by 1935 and has now shrunk to 54.

Lacking the power to enforce its decisions, the League of Nations has been little more than an agency of protest, with the result that any nation censured for aggressive action withdrew from membership—and that was all there was to it.

The situation of the League has been not unlike that of ardent pacifists, whose intentions are good but who fail to take into account conditions as they are, and assume that all humans are civilized.

There is also a resemblance to group action in passing resolutions against crime and expecting them to take the place of policing.

It could not have been otherwise than that the League would condemn Russia's military invasion of independent Finland, but expulsion from the League would mean nothing to the Stalin government and it would be only by superior strength of arms that an edict of the League could be made to carry weight against such banditry.

Whether the League of Nations, as now constituted, can be saved from complete wreckage, to become the nucleus for a later, more effective union of nations devoted to attaining eventual permanent peace, cannot now be foretold. Its impotency in handling the Russo-Finnish matter, the Japanese invasion of China, the Italian conquest of Ethiopia and the various aggressions of Nazi Germany, evidences weakness that is not encouraging.

Until civilization has made further progress it now appears that a defensive union of sufficient military strength to successfully combat aggression by single, more powerful nations, is the only solution to recurring threats of annihilation of small nations.

Clothing Workers to Wait

THE WAGE-SCALE committee of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, at a three-day conference, decided not to seek any pay increases in men's and boys' clothing industry at present, in spite of increased living costs.

The committee was aided in its study of the situation by the union's own research economist and by representatives of the Clothing Manufacturers Association of the United States. Its conclusion was that no reason existed for departing from the practice of awaiting the anniversary dates of present collective bargaining agreements.

This sounds like a sensible decision based on a long-range view of the needs of its members. It also considers the good of the whole country along with that of the special group.

The tendency in recent years too often has been to act only for immediate and special interests, to bring pressure to bear to obtain selfish advantages, or to put over a favored plan or piece of legislation for one locality's benefit.

It will be better for all America, and for democracy, to think and function as a nation and not as separate pressure groups.

To Relieve High Tension

STUDENTS taking Physical Education 168-D at Columbia university next semester will be taught "Methods of Relaxation" or "how to do nothing."

It isn't a "snap course" or a joke. It is offered by the physical education department because there appears to be a need today for people to learn how to ease tensions—physical and mental—between jobs and after the day's work is over.

In modern society, says Dr. Josephine Rathbone of Columbia, economic insecurity, occupational hazards and intrusion of the machine tempo in daily life have created a highly nervous condition with bad effects for far too many people. This new tenseness is recognized as a contributing cause of heart disease, neuritis, neuralgia, insomnia, indigestion, and the lesser ills of stiff necks and sore backs. Almost everyone is affected.

There are persons who know how and when to "let down" and are consequently able to get a proper amount of rest. More, however, need help along this line. The Columbia course, and no doubt others like it, will teach the stretching and breathing methods which tend to induce relaxation and the positions in which it is most easily possible. The beneficial effects of widespread understanding and practice of such rest-business might be more numerous and varied than most people realize.

After the Gum Has Been Chewed

EVEN older than the problem of what to do with safety razor blades is that which involves a way to dispose of used chewing gum without dropping it on floor or sidewalk, sticking it under a chair or table, or otherwise making it a nuisance.

It is estimated that New York City's street cleaning department devotes several hundred thousands of dollars in time each year to scraping caked gum from sidewalks and public places, and that unless this were done pavements would soon be blanketed with mashed chewing gum.

Energetic Mayor La Guardia thinks he has hit upon a scheme to reform gum devotees' habits. He has asked chewing gum companies to request chewers to save the wrapper of each stick of gum, so as to have it handy to re-wrap the chewed mass and deposit it in a rubbish box or basket stationed at convenient intervals in parks and along streets.

But the habit of carelessness is hard to overcome and the same thoughtless folks who litter sidewalks and streets with candy wrappers, empty cigaret packets and fragments of torn paper, are not likely to think very much about where they throw, or stick, discarded chewing gum.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—His letters are a Kwantung salad of joss sticks, coolie gossip, and mannerisms that are peculiar to the heathen Chinee. It is now illegal for Americans to take part in foreign wars, and since he is an instructor-pilot under contract personally to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, it wouldn't be very friendly of me to mention his name, would it?

But he writes such long, easy, jocular letters—sometimes from Kunming, sometimes on the night train out of Hanoi—that I thought you would like to read a part of at least one of them. . . . That is why I have lifted these sometimes harrowing but always interesting details from his latest, dated Nov. 20, out of Yunnan:

• • •

WHEN anyone gives a dinner party in China the guest of honor is always seated with his back to the wall, and facing the door, so that no one can sneak up behind him and slip a knife into him, or shoot him.

If you drive a car, you have to be very careful, because the coolies make a habit of cutting in front of you, coming as close to the car as possible, without being hit. This cuts off the devils that are following them. The devils then become attached to the car, allowing the coolies to proceed unmolested.

Monkey brains eaten uncooked are a great delicacy. They are cracked out of the monkey's skull with a nut-cracker.

War lords still govern some of the remote interior fastnesses, and in their provinces an honored guest is always welcomed with a special duck dinner. There is much ceremony to this dinner. A great pot is placed on the table with live ducks swimming in it. Fire is then ignited under the pot with the live ducks still swimming. The water in this way is brought to a boil, and when the feet of the ducks are nicely parboiled, they are cut off and served to the guests. The extreme gesture is to throw the rest of the duck away, it being considered inferior to the parboiled feet. Birds'-nest soup is another delicacy, and so is elephant's trunk.

If you say to a Chinese, "It's not raining, it it?" he will answer "Yes," meaning—yes, it isn't raining.

When people die, it is considered especially fortunate if they can be buried on the southern slope of a hill. . . . And in China the mourning color is white—not black. Another custom at death is to place a rooster on the coffin, as this bird knows how to claw the evil spirits back into the ground.

• • •

THEN there is the custom of saving "face." No Chinese ever really makes a mistake. If he does, it is because of a sore arm, or because he is ill. Everyone, of course, knows this is a lie, but it helps him to save "face." By the same token, no Chinese is ever fired. He always "quits" because he has to visit his aged aunt in a distant province, who is dying.

If a baby happens to be born in the open—say in a rice field, or anywhere out of doors, it is against the law to bring it into a hospital, or anywhere indoors, until it is a month old. . . . Tiger blood is a fine tonic for warriors . . . The tiger himself has always been a sign of good luck. . . . The average income of an average Chinese worker amounts, in American money, to about $6.25 a year. This figure was given out by Madame Chiang Kai-shek herself, and she should know.

Note: The author of this letter, an Ohioan, has done no fighting himself. But he has trained plenty of Chinese pilots who have sent their planes against the Japanese. He will be home in six months. This is one bird I want to get into a corner and make talk.

LOOK WHO'S HELPING!

Listen, World!

You Can't Let Them Down.

(Mrs. C. J. Marshall, Denver, Col., Columnist of the Day.)

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAVE YOU PAID THAT BILL? Do you even know you owe it?"

Mrs. C. J. Marshall's asking—our Denver, Col., "Columnist of the day"—with a question that's going to make plenty of us stop, look and wipe our rosy blushes.

"You pride yourself on being independent," says she. "You may even boast that you 'don't owe a cent to any living man.' But actually you are in debt for everything you have or are! In debt in ways you never dreamed!"

"I remember the surprise I felt when this fact first dawned on me, some while after my marriage. My husband had given me an exquisite, fragile platinum engagement ring of unusual design, which I had taken to the jeweler who had made it, for repairs. His face showed increasing concern as he examined it and he asked how it came to be so mangled. I told him that I had caught my hand in the stockyards gate while helping my husband sort sheep. I suspect I felt a little pride, at this proof of my wifely devotion, but the jeweler's face reflected only indignation and disgust.

"'That was no place to wear such a lovely ring!' he scolded. 'Great care went to the making of that ring; we were proud of it. You should have protected it; you had no right to abuse anything that meant so much in creation and devotion.'

"I was honestly astounded. It had never dawned on me before that one's OBLIGATION extended so far. I began to think how far it did extend and with each thought I was more humbled. I had thought one settled accounts with cash or thank yous. Now I saw that our debts go on and on. I had not merely accepted a ring which this man had made. I had accepted his creative pride with it . . . his personal dream of beauty . . . his reputation as an artist. AND I WAS AS MUCH UNDER OBLIGATION TO PROTECT ALL THESE AS TO PAY FOR THE ORIGINAL PURCHASE.

"It puts an amazing new aspect on things when one realizes that. It gives a new depth of meaning to everything — and creates new spiritual bonds. Life becomes infinitely richer and wider.

"For example. I belong to a fine national sorority whose pin I had worn as a matter of course. Now I saw that that pin carried an OBLIGATION too. It wasn't just a decoration: it was a symbol of noble things for which my sorority stands. I HAVE NO RIGHT TO WEAR THAT PIN UNLESS MY BEHAVIOR AND MY ENVIRONMENT CAN MEASURE UP TO ITS STANDARDS!

"Everything you and I have, means something — cost something. Not just money or time—but thought and dreams, perhaps tears and prayers. The streets we walk on, the flag we salute—think of what they have cost through the years. WE TAKE OVER THAT OBLIGATION WHEN WE WALK ON THE STREETS. WHEN WE SALUTE THAT FLAG AND ACCEPT ITS PROTECTION. WE GO INTO DEBT TO MILLIONS OF MEN AND WOMEN, LONG SINCE DEAD . . . WE MAKE A COVENANT WITH MILLIONS YET TO COME. WE CANNOT LET THEM DOWN!

"'I CANNOT LET THEM DOWN!' I have taken that as a secret oath with myself and that unseen horde. 'I CANNOT LET THEM DOWN!' They gave me the best they had. It is up to me to protect that best. No matter how careless I may wish to be, for myself, I HAVE NO RIGHT TO LET THEM DOWN! Each thing I accept brings with it a lasting debt. Whether it is my neighbor, baking me a good loaf of bread . . . or my Christ dying on the cross . . . I MUST KEEP MY FAITH WITH THEM. I MUST GIVE MYSELF AS THEY GAVE THEMSELVES . . . I MUST CHERISH THEIR DREAM AS THEY CHERISHED IT AND PASS IT ON TO THE NEXT ONE. THEY TRUSTED ME. I CANNOT LET THEM DOWN."

(Mrs. C. J.) Elva C. Marshall,
R. D., Denver, Colo.

You haven't let them down, my dear! You have given more today than you dreamed and thousands, in far, strange places, will call you blessed for it.

Timely Editorial

With Comrade Browder in Charge.

It can't happen here, but it is interesting to suppose what the situation would develop should Soviet Russia suddenly decide to employ her modern, gun-lined diplomacy toward adding territory and "liberating" the masses in the United States.

After the preliminaries were over and the fighting started, we presume Moscow would announce that a new People's government had been set up in Podunk Center with Earl Browder at the head. Comrade Browder, the announcement would continue, states the new government is entirely in accord with Russian demands and accepts Russia as an ally. Whereupon the People's government would welcome the Red armies to help shoot the non-comrades who would be disturbing the peace between two otherwise peaceful countries.

With so much peace all around, we fear the Americans would develop a severe case of anger. In fact, it is easy to see why the Finns have been getting out their pitch forks and axes, as well as their armies.—Kansas City Star.

Keeping Step

—By C. P. STEWART

GOVERNOR BRICKER of Ohio and Mayor Burton of Cleveland have been engaged recently in the same kind of row that everlastingly is raging between the federal government and the various state governments whenever the question of responsibility of relief of the needy is under discussion. The Ohio muss has been comparatively in miniature of the national one, but the two are identical in principle.

Every time congress meets a howl goes up from the representatives of each of the 48 states to the effect that that particular delegation's state has exhausted all its resources in aid of its distressed citizenry, but still is far short of enough to meet its emergency: therefore it must have federal financial assistance.

The theory seems to be that, if 48 states, each of them, has taxed itself up to the limit, and each is still shy of what it needs, the whole 48 of them must ante into the kitty for division among the whole 48 of them.

A Comparison.

It's as if 48 men had 50 cents apiece and wanted to raise a fund of $48. Obviously it couldn't be done by 48 individual 50-cent contributions. So what would be the solution of the problem? Why, according to our congressional economists, the solution would be to levy $1 upon each of them. How, with 50 cents apiece, they could dig up a $48 total, any more than they could do it separately, is a puzzle for an arithmetician. That's the dope, though.

Naturally no state's senators and representatives believe that such a scheme would work. They're all quite aware that a billion, whether levied upon all the states collectively, or split up among 'em pro rata, as per population and resources, amounts to the same thing, so far as the taxpayers are concerned—call it federal taxes, or state taxes, or county taxes, or city taxes or any old kind of taxes.

That isn't it.

The individual solon's belief is that, somehow, HIS state will get a bigger divvy out of the common pool than the other states. In short, it will flim-flam the other 47.

True, a single state may be stricken by a particular calamity, and have to ask for national charity.

However, when it's on an average?—phooey!

It's sickish to listen to it in congress.

Ohio's Case.

Governor Bricker's contention has been that cities like Cleveland must 'tend to themselves locally.

I don't know anything about the Buckeye state, but, from my observations in Washington, I can't but conclude that his arithmetic has a certain amount of sense in it.

Mayor Burton of Cleveland does make one substantial point. He says that Cleveland has taxed itself up to its state law's limit for relief, and has got to have the legislature's authority to LIFT the limit—he wants an extra session of the legislature to lift it. Perhaps—but I'm skeptical, looking on from Washington.

Incidentally, Governor Bricker remarks that the Ohio city of Toledo had an election TO lift the limit, and voted against it.

Mayor La Guardia of New York subsequently put the pan under Governor Bricker for the latter's attitude. But it's to be remembered that Mayor La Guardia's a very local official, and has that municipal complex.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The confidential report which Ambassador Joe Kennedy brought to Roosevelt was anything but optimistic. Contrary to rumor, Kennedy did not report any possibility of peace in Europe by April.

On the contrary, he told the president that people on either side had not yet suffered enough to want peace very poignantly. He emphasized the fact that the populations of both sides have to feel real privation before they will make the necessary sacrifices for peace.

One thing about which the ambassador was very positive was the fact that business was going to pot in Europe, and that the present capitalist system in Europe was in grave danger. He did not deny the possibility of revolution behind the lines if the war drags on too long.

Note: Kennedy did not report on this to President Roosevelt, but he, personally, has felt the effect of long, grueling hours in blacked-out London. He has been suffering from stomach trouble, and has lost 10 pounds.

New Deal Football.

BIGGEST hit at the recent Gridiron club dinner was 32-year-old Governor Stassen of Minnesota. His comparison of football teams brought down the house.

First he told about the famous football eleven of the University of Minnesota. Then he switched, very subtly, to football as played in Washington, naming Ickes, Murphy, Farley, Morgenthau and other star players on the team.

"Of course," he said, "it looks as if only the quarterback understood the signals.

"And then there is Professor Moley, who scores a New Deal touchdown behind their own goalposts.

"But the most spectacular play of all was when Ickes tackled McNutt just after he had received a delayed forward pass."

Political Go-Round.

AFTER a three-day stay in the Capital, including a visit to the White House, canny Alf Landon is telling friends that he is convinced Roosevelt will again be the Democratic standard-bearer next year. . . . While in Los Angeles, Senator H. Styles Bridges said 'howdy" to a number of big shot Southern California GOP leaders, but the biggest one eluded him. Harry Chandler, multi-millionaire publisher, declined an invitation on the ground of a previous engagement — which turned out to be a trustees' meeting at Leland Stanford University . . . The presidential bug certainly plays strange tricks. Secretary Harry Woodring, who has been hanging on to his war portfolio by the skin of his teeth, considers himself a contender for the vice-presidential nomination.

In a Dither.

CHAIRMAN ARTHUR ALTMEYER of the social security board is in a terrible dither.

You can appreciate just how nervous he must be by the fact that although he has adamantly opposed liberalizing pensions in the past, he now is frantically figuring how to increase them. Specifically, by $39,000,000 worth.

Last spring, when social security revision was under consideration, Altmeyer trotted out a batch of amendments which, he solemnly assured the president, and congressional leaders, and Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, would pay out $114,000,000 to needy aged in 1940. There was considerable private skepticism about Almeyer's claims. But he insisted he knew what he was talking about, so other proposals were ditched and his amendments approved.

Now, with only a few weeks remaining before these much-touted amendments go into effect, it develops that Almeyer's calculations were all wet. Instead of $114,000,000, actually not more than $74,000,000 will be paid out.

And not all of that will be pensions, only $35,000,000 going for that purpose. The remaining $39,000,000 will go to surviving relatives of deceased annuitants.

In other words, Altmeyer's amendments have turned out to be a complete flop when it comes to really liberalizing the pension system. The payments will be a drop in the bucket compared to the hundreds of millions of dollars that will be siphoned into an idle treasury fund through social security taxes.

Altmeyer Under Fire.

SO ALTMEYER is in a terrible stew to find some way to cover up his fiasco. If he doesn't it may mean his scalp. He already is under heavy fire from several powerful quarters.

Pension forces are sour on him because of his hostility to liberalizing the pension system. McNutt, critical because of the millions of "John Doe" (unidentifiable) pension accounts cluttering up social security records, wants to clean out the whole social security board and replace it with one man of his own choice. And, with an election in the offing, Roosevelt and the politicos are sure to be sore when they discover just how badly Altmeyer misled them.

Note: Chairman Bob Doughton of the house ways and means committee has ordered Altmeyer to submit a report giving a complete picture of the "John Doe" situation and the social security set-up.

British-U. S. Planes.

LATEST device of the British, in taking delivery of planes built in the United States, is to tow them across the Canadian border on barges, principally at Detroit and Buffalo.

Both devices have resulted from the U. S. ruling that planes sold to belligerents may not be flown into or from the United States. So the only way to export them without dismantling is to shove, pull, coast or tow them across the Canadian border.

The Montana airport at first was an easy solution of the problem. Planes could be flown there from U. S. plants by U. S. pilots, while still U. S. property. Then the transfer of title was made on the spot, the Canadians fastening a rope to the plane and pulling it across the border. Canadian or British pilots climbed aboard and flew the plane away.

But the Montana airport is high and cold, and the weather is bad for flying. So the British are now taking delivery of planes at the dockside in Buffalo and Detroit, where the ships are rolled onto barges and towed across to the Canadian side.

Spring Water

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

OUR FRIENDS are bound to hear a lot about the spring. It flows out of a corner of the old cellar, into the pool, and swale, the creek. It maintains an even temperature the year around—not too cold in winter, never warm in summer, always clear and always flowing. The water is as soft as rainwater, and much the same taste. Its purity gives it oddity of flavor—but pleasant and satisfying to the one who drinks.

During our life together, my wife and I have had experience with various kinds of water. During our first year, at the edge of St. Petersburg, Florida, I drove a pipe down eight feet into the coral and made a soft water well beside the kitchen door. The water was unfit for drinking, so we bought our drinking water from one of the tanks which make daily trips to and from a spring in that locality.

For many years we lived where the well water was roily and yellow with iron and other minerals. It was unfit for washing clothes, and left a crust on any utensil or glass in which it stood. Besides, the well was a drilled one, very deep, and the pump was too hard for a woman to use. When we moved to a farm with another deep well, but a wind pump, we supposed our troubles were over. However, the wind-pump broke and our landlord did not replace it. I fastened a piece of iron pipe to that pump handle to give more leverage so that we could pump it by hand, but getting water was always a dreaded task.

We spent six months in town, with city water on tap. It was easy to get, but flavored with chlorine. We had plumbing to look after and water bills to pay.

The last place where we lived, the well water was excellent but we had no cistern, and it would not suds without use of alkaline powders.

Now we have the spring, with a pump in the kitchen sink. The first time my wife did a washing here I found her beaming. She is one of those women who likes water and soapsuds. "Now I can really wash!" she exclaimed. "How white this nice clear water makes the clothes!"

Which brings me back to where I began. Aside from its beauty, its limpid music, its unending supply—and the symbolism which attaches in our minds to a spring gushing from sandstone rock—our spring has proved its usefulness. We are satisfied. Our friends are bound to hear a lot about the spring.

SEEING REDS

The "vanishing American" is not vanishing as rapidly as many think, according to Washington reports which indicate a rapid rise in Indian population. That's a better way for population figures to go into the "red" than to see an increase in the Moscow variety.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1939.

It'll soon be time to sharpen the elbows for the final Christmas shopping rush.

According to H. G. Wells, "the human race is rushing to extinction"—and that can at least be said to apply to reckless motorists.

Will League of Nations Survive?

THE FINE IDEALISM of the League of Nations, which came into being with adoption of the Versailles treaty in 1920, has been proved ineffective in accomplishing the purposes for which it was designed.

It was "to promote international co-operation and to achieve international peace and security" that the League was formed, with an original membership of 42 nations, which grew to 60 by 1935 and has now shrunk to 54.

Lacking the power to enforce its decisions, the League of Nations has been little more than an agency of protest, with the result that any nation censured for aggressive action withdrew from membership—and that was all there was to it.

The situation of the League has been not unlike that of ardent pacifists, whose intentions are good but who fail to take into account conditions as they are, and assume that all humans are civilized.

There is also a resemblance to group action in passing resolutions against crime and expecting them to take the place of policing.

It could not have been otherwise than that the League would condemn Russia's military invasion of independent Finland, but expulsion from the League would mean nothing to the Stalin government and it would be only by superior strength of arms that an edict of the League could be made to carry weight against such banditry.

Whether the League of Nations, as now constituted, can be saved from complete wreckage, to become the nucleus for a later, more effective union of nations devoted to attaining eventual permanent peace, cannot now be foretold. Its impotency in handling the Russo-Finnish matter, the Japanese invasion of China, the Italian conquest of Ethiopia and the various aggressions of Nazi Germany, evidences weakness that is not encouraging.

Until civilization has made further progress it now appears that a defensive union of sufficient military strength to successfully combat aggression by single, more powerful nations, is the only solution to recurring threats of annihilation of small nations.

Clothing Workers to Wait

THE WAGE-SCALE committee of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, at a three-day conference, decided not to seek any pay increases in men's and boys' clothing industry at present, in spite of increased living costs.

The committee was aided in its study of the situation by the union's own research economist and by representatives of the Clothing Manufacturers Association of the United States. Its conclusion was that no reason existed for departing from the practice of awaiting the anniversary dates of present collective bargaining agreements.

This sounds like a sensible decision based on a long-range view of the needs of its members. It also considers the good of the whole country along with that of the special group.

The tendency in recent years too often has been to act only for immediate and special interests, to bring pressure to bear to obtain selfish advantages, or to put over a favored plan or piece of legislation for one locality's benefit.

It will be better for all America, and for democracy, to think and function as a nation and not as separate pressure groups.

To Relieve High Tension

STUDENTS taking Physical Education 168-D at Columbia university next semester will be taught "Methods of Relaxation" or "how to do nothing."

It isn't a "snap course" or a joke. It is offered by the physical education department because there appears to be a need today for people to learn how to ease tensions—physical and mental—between jobs and after the day's work is over.

In modern society, says Dr. Josephine Rathbone of Columbia, economic insecurity, occupational hazards and intrusion of the machine tempo in daily life have created a highly nervous condition with bad effects for far too many people. This new tenseness is recognized as a contributing cause of heart disease, neuritis, neuralgia, insomnia, indigestion, and the lesser ills of stiff necks and sore backs. Almost everyone is affected.

There are persons who know how and when to "let down" and are consequently able to get a proper amount of rest. More, however, need help along this line. The Columbia course, and no doubt others like it, will teach the stretching and breathing methods which tend to induce relaxation and the positions in which it is most easily possible. The beneficial effects of widespread understanding and practice of such rest-business might be more numerous and varied than most people realize.

After the Gum Has Been Chewed

EVEN older than the problem of what to do with safety razor blades is that which involves a way to dispose of used chewing gum without dropping it on floor or sidewalk, sticking it under a chair or table, or otherwise making it a nuisance.

It is estimated that New York City's street cleaning department devotes several hundred thousands of dollars in time each year to scraping caked gum from sidewalks and public places, and that unless this were done pavements would soon be blanketed with mashed chewing gum.

Energetic Mayor La Guardia thinks he has hit upon a scheme to reform gum devotees' habits. He has asked chewing gum companies to request chewers to save the wrapper of each stick of gum, so as to have it handy to re-wrap the chewed mass and deposit it in a rubbish box or basket stationed at convenient intervals in parks and along streets.

But the habit of carelessness is hard to overcome and the same thoughtless folks who litter sidewalks and streets with candy wrappers, empty cigaret packets and fragments of torn paper, are not likely to think very much about where they throw, or stick, discarded chewing gum.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—His letters are a Kwantung salad of joss sticks, coolie gossip, and mannerisms that are peculiar to the heathen Chinee. It is now illegal for Americans to take part in foreign wars, and since he is an instructor-pilot under contract personally to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, it wouldn't be very friendly of me to mention his name, would it?

But he writes such long, easy, jocular letters—sometimes from Kunming, sometimes on the night train out of Hanoi—that I thought you would like to read a part of at least one of them. . . . That is why I have lifted these sometimes harrowing but always interesting details from his latest, dated Nov. 20, out of Yunnan:

* * *

WHEN anyone gives a dinner party in China the guest of honor is always seated with his back to the wall, and facing the door, so that no one can sneak up behind him and slip a knife into him, or shoot him.

If you drive a car, you have to be very careful, because the coolies make a habit of cutting in front of you, coming as close to the car as possible, without being hit. This cuts off the devils that are following them. The devils then become attached to the car, allowing the coolies to proceed unmolested.

Monkey brains eaten uncooked are a great delicacy. They are cracked out of the monkey's skull with a nut-cracker.

War lords still govern some of the remote interior fastnesses, and in their provinces an honored guest is always welcomed with a special duck dinner. There is much ceremony to this dinner. A great pot is placed on the table with live ducks swimming in it. Fire is then ignited under the pot with the live ducks still swimming. The water in this way is brought to a boil, and when the feet of the ducks are nicely parboiled, they are cut off and served to the guests. The extreme gesture is to throw the rest of the duck away, it being considered inferior to the parboiled feet. Birds'-nest soup is another delicacy, and so is elephant's trunk.

If you say to a Chinese, "It's not raining, it it?" he will answer "Yes," meaning—yes, it isn't raining.

When people die, it is considered especially fortunate if they can be buried on the southern slope of a hill. . . . And in China the mourning color is white—not black. Another custom at death is to place a rooster on the coffin, as this bird knows how to claw the evil spirits back into the ground.

* * *

THEN there is the custom of saving "face." No Chinese ever really makes a mistake. If he does, it is because of a sore arm, or because he is ill. Everyone, of course, knows this is a lie, but it helps him to save "face." By the same token, no Chinese is ever fired. He always "quits" because he has to visit his aged aunt in a distant province, who is dying.

If a baby happens to be born in the open—say in a rice field, or anywhere out of doors, it is against the law to bring it into a hospital, or anywhere indoors, until it is a month old. . . . Tiger blood is a fine tonic for warriors . . . The tiger himself has always been a sign of good luck. . . . The average income of an average Chinese worker amounts, in American money, to about $6.25 a year. This figure was given out by Madame Chiang Kai-shek herself, and she should know.

Note: The author of this letter, an Ohioan, has done no fighting himself. But he has trained plenty of Chinese pilots who have sent their planes against the Japanese. He will be home in six months. This is one bird I want to get into a corner and make talk.

LOOK WHO'S HELPING!

Listen, World!

You Can't Let Them Down.

(Mrs. C. J. Marshall, Denver, Col., Columnist of the Day.)

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAVE YOU PAID THAT BILL? Do you even know you owe it?"

Mrs. C. J. Marshall's asking—our Denver, Col., "Columnist of the day"—with a question that's going to make plenty of us stop, look and wipe our rosy blushes.

"You pride yourself on being independent," says she. "You may even boast that you 'don't owe a cent to any living man.' But actually you are in debt for everything you have or are! In debt in ways you never dreamed!"

"I remember the surprise I felt when this fact first dawned on me, some while after my marriage. My husband had given me an exquisite, fragile platinum engagement ring of unusual design, which I had taken to the jeweler who had made it, for repairs. His face showed increasing concern as he examined it and he asked how it came to be so mangled. I told him that I had caught my hand in the stockyards gate while helping my husband sort sheep. I suspect I felt a little pride at this proof of my wifely devotion, but the jeweler's face reflected only indignation and disgust.

"'That was no place to wear such a lovely ring!' he scolded. 'Great care went to the making of that ring; we were proud of it. You should have protected it; you had no right to abuse anything that meant so much in creation and devotion.'

"I was honestly astounded. It had never dawned on me before that one's OBLIGATION extended so far. I began to think how far it did extend and with each thought I was more humbled. I had thought one settled accounts with cash or thank yous. Now I saw that our debts go on and on. I had not merely accepted a ring which this man had made. I had accepted his creative pride with it . . . his personal dream of beauty . . . his reputation as an artist. AND I WAS AS MUCH UNDER OBLIGATION TO PROTECT ALL THESE AS TO PAY FOR THE ORIGINAL PURCHASE.

"It puts an amazing new aspect on things when one realizes that. It gives a new depth of meaning to everything—and creates new spiritual bonds. Life becomes infinitely richer and wider.

"For example, I belong to a fine national sorority whose pin I had worn as a matter of course. Now I saw that that pin carried an OBLIGATION too. It wasn't just a decoration: it was a symbol of noble things for which my sorority stands. I HAVE NO RIGHT TO WEAR THAT PIN UNLESS MY BEHAVIOR AND MY ENVIRONMENT CAN MEASURE UP TO ITS STANDARDS!

"Everything you and I have, means something — cost something. Not just money or time—but thought and dreams, perhaps tears and prayers. The streets we walk on, the flag we salute—think of what they have cost through the years. WE TAKE OVER THAT OBLIGATION WHEN WE WALK ON THE STREETS, WHEN WE SALUTE THAT FLAG AND ACCEPT ITS PROTECTION. WE GO INTO DEBT TO MILLIONS OF MEN AND WOMEN, LONG SINCE DEAD . . . WE MAKE A COVENANT WITH MILLIONS YET TO COME. WE CANNOT LET THEM DOWN!

"'I CANNOT LET THEM DOWN!' I have taken that as a secret oath with myself and that unseen horde. 'I CANNOT LET THEM DOWN!' They gave me the best they had. It is up to me to protect that best. No matter how careless I may wish to be, for myself, I HAVE NO RIGHT TO LET THEM DOWN! Each thing I accept brings with it a lasting debt. Whether it is my neighbor, baking me a good loaf of bread . . . or my Christ dying on the cross . . . I MUST KEEP MY FAITH WITH THEM. I MUST GIVE MYSELF AS THEY GAVE THEMSELVES . . . I MUST CHERISH THEIR DREAM AS THEY CHERISHED IT AND PASS IT ON TO THE NEXT ONE. THEY TRUSTED ME. I CANNOT LET THEM DOWN."

(Mrs. C. J.) Elva C. Marshall,
R. D., Denver, Colo.

You haven't let them down, my dear! You have given more today than you dreamed and thousands, in far, strange places, will call you blessed for it.

Timely Editorial

With Comrade Browder in Charge.

It can't happen here, but it is interesting to suppose what the situation would develop should Soviet Russia suddenly decide to employ her modern, gun-lined diplomacy toward adding territory and "liberating" the masses in the United States.

After the preliminaries were over and the fighting started, we presume Moscow would announce that a new People's government had been set up in Podunk Center with Earl Browder at the head. Comrade Browder, the announcement would continue, states the new government is entirely in accord with Russian demands and accepts Russia as an ally. Whereupon the People's government would welcome the Red armies to help shoot the non-comrades who would be disturbing the peace between two otherwise peaceful countries.

With so much peace all around, we fear the Americans would develop a severe case of anger. In fact, it is easy to see why the Finns have been getting out their pitch forks and axes, as well as their armies.—Kansas City Star.

Keeping Step

—By C. P. STEWART

GOVERNOR BRICKER of Ohio and Mayor Burton of Cleveland have been engaged recently in the same kind of row that everlastingly is raging between the federal government and the various state governments whenever the question of responsibility of relief of the needy is under discussion. The Ohio muss has been comparatively in miniature of the national one, but the two are identical in principle.

Every time congress meets a howl goes up from the representatives of each of the 48 states to the effect that that particular delegation's state has exhausted all its resources in aid of its distressed citizenry, but still is far short of enough to meet its emergency; therefore it must have federal financial assistance.

The theory seems to be that, if 48 states, each of them, has taxed itself up to the limit, and each is still shy of what it needs, the whole 48 of them must ante into the kitty for division among the whole 48 of them.

A Comparison.

It's as if 48 men had 50 cents apiece and wanted to raise a fund of $48. Obviously it couldn't be done by 48 individual 50-cent contributions. So what would be the solution of the problem? Why, according to our congressional economists, the solution would be to levy $1 upon each of them. How, with 50 cents apiece, they could dig up a $48 total, any more than they could do it separately, is a puzzle for an arithmetician. That's the dope, though.

Naturally no state's senators and representatives believe that such a scheme would work. They're all quite aware that a billion, whether levied upon all the states collectively, or split up among 'em pro rata, as per population and resources, amounts to the same thing, so far as the taxpayers are concerned—call it federal taxes, or state taxes, or county taxes, or city taxes or any old kind of taxes.

That isn't it.

The individual solon's belief is that, somehow, HIS state will get a bigger divvy out of the common pool than the other states. In short, it will flim-flam the other 47.

True, a single state may be stricken by a particular calamity, and have to ask for national charity.

However, when it's on an average?—phooey!

It's sickish to listen to it in congress.

Ohio's Case.

Governor Bricker's contention has been that cities like Cleveland must 'tend to themselves locally.

I don't know anything about the Buckeye state, but, from my observations in Washington, I can't but conclude that his arithmetic has a certain amount of sense in it.

Mayor Burton of Cleveland does make one substantial point. He says that Cleveland has taxed itself up to its state law's limit for relief, and has got to have the legislature's authority to LIFT the limit—he wants an extra session of the legislature to lift it. Perhaps—but I'm skeptical, looking on from Washington.

Incidentally, Governor Bricker remarks that the Ohio city of Toledo had an election TO lift the limit, and voted against it.

Mayor La Guardia of New York subsequently put the pan under Governor Bricker for the latter's attitude. But it's to be remembered that Mayor La Guardia's a very local official, and has that municipal complex.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The confidential report which Ambassador Joe Kennedy brought to Roosevelt was anything but optimistic. Contrary to rumor, Kennedy did not report any possibility of peace in Europe by April.

On the contrary, he told the president that people on either side had not yet suffered enough to want peace very poignantly. He emphasized the fact that the populations of both sides have to feel real privation before they will make the necessary sacrifices for peace.

One thing about which the ambassador was very positive was the fact that business was going to pot in Europe, and that the present capitalist system in Europe was in grave danger. He did not deny the possibility of revolution behind the lines if the war drags on too long.

Note: Kennedy did not report on this to President Roosevelt, but he, personally, has felt the effect of long, grueling hours in blacked-out London. He has been suffering from stomach trouble, and has lost 10 pounds.

New Deal Football.

BIGGEST hit at the recent Gridiron club dinner was 32-year-old Governor Stassen of Minnesota. His comparison of football teams brought down the house.

First he told about the famous football eleven of the University of Minnesota. Then he switched, very subtly, to football as played in Washington, naming Ickes, Murphy, Farley, Morgenthau and other star players on the team.

"Of course," he said, "it looks as if only the quarterback understood the signals.

"And then there is Professor Moley, who scores a New Deal touchdown behind their own goalposts.

"But the most spectacular play of all was when Ickes tackled McNutt just after he had received a delayed forward pass."

Political Go-Round.

AFTER a three-day stay in the Capital, including a visit to the White House, canny Alf Landon is telling friends that he is convinced Roosevelt will again be the Democratic standard-bearer next year. . . . While in Los Angeles, Senator H. Styles Bridges said 'howdy" to a number of big shot Southern California GOP leaders, but the biggest one eluded him. Harry Chandler, multi-millionaire publisher, declined an invitation on the ground of a previous engagement — which turned out to be a trustees' meeting at Leland Stanford University . . . The presidential bug certainly plays strange tricks. Secretary Harry Woodring, who has been hanging on to his war portfolio by the skin of his teeth, considers himself a contender for the vice-presidential nomination.

In a Dither.

CHAIRMAN ARTHUR ALTMEYER of the social security board is in a terrible dither.

You can appreciate just how nervous he must be by the fact that although he has adamantly opposed liberalizing pensions in the past, he now is frantically figuring how to increase them. Specifically, by $39,000,000 worth.

Last spring, when social security revision was under consideration, Altmeyer trotted out a batch of amendments which, he solemnly assured the president, and congressional leaders, and Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, would pay out $114,000,000 to needy aged in 1940. There was considerable private skepticism about Almeyer's claims. But he insisted he knew what he was talking about, so other proposals were ditched and his amendments approved.

Now, with only a few weeks remaining before these much-touted amendments go into effect, it develops that Almeyer's calculations were all wet. Instead of $114,000,000, actually not more than $74,000,000 will be paid out.

And not all of that will be pensions, only $35,000,000 going for that purpose. The remaining $39,000,000 will go to surviving relatives of deceased annuitants.

In other words, Altmeyer's amendments have turned out to be a complete flop when it comes to really liberalizing the pension system. The payments will be a drop in the bucket compared to the hundreds of millions of dollars that will be siphoned into an idle treasury fund through social security taxes.

* * *

Altmeyer Under Fire.

SO ALTMEYER is in a terrible stew to find some way to cover up his fiasco. If he doesn't it may mean his scalp. He already is under heavy fire from several powerful quarters.

Pension forces are sour on him because of his hostility to liberalizing the pension system. McNutt, critical because of the millions of "John Doe" (unidentifiable) pension accounts cluttering up social security records, wants to clean out the whole social security board and replace it with one man of his own choice. And, with an election in the offing, Roosevelt and the politicos are sure to be sore when they discover just how badly Altmeyer misled them.

Note: Chairman Bob Doughton of the house ways and means committee has ordered Altmeyer to submit a report giving a complete picture of the "John Doe" situation and the social security set-up.

British-U. S. Planes.

LATEST device of the British, in taking delivery of planes built in the United States, is to tow them across the Canadian border on barges, principally at Detroit and Buffalo.

Both devices have resulted from the U. S. ruling that planes sold to belligerents may not be flown into or from the United States. So the only way to export them without dismantling is to shove, pull, coast or tow them across the Canadian border.

The Montana airport at first was an easy solution of the problem. Planes could be flown there from U. S. plants by U. S. pilots, while still U. S. property. Then the transfer of title was made on the spot, the Canadians fastening a rope to the plane and pulling it across the border. Canadian or British pilots climbed aboard and flew the plane away.

But the Montana airport is high and cold, and the weather is bad for flying. So the British are now taking delivery of planes at the dockside in Buffalo and Detroit, where the ships are rolled onto barges and towed across to the Canadian side.

Spring Water

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

OUR FRIENDS are bound to hear a lot about the spring. It flows out of a corner of the old cellar, into the pool, and swale, the creek. It maintains an even temperature the year around—not too cold in winter, never warm in summer, always clear and always flowing. The water is as soft as rainwater, and much the same taste. Its purity gives it oddity of flavor—but pleasant and satisfying to the one who drinks.

During our life together, my wife and I have had experience with various kinds of water. During our first year, at the edge of St. Petersburg, Florida, I drove a pipe down eight feet into the coral and made a soft water well beside the kitchen door. The water was unfit for drinking, so we bought our drinking water from one of the tanks which make daily trips to and from a spring in that locality.

For many years we lived where the well water was roily and yellow with iron and other minerals. It was unfit for washing clothes, and left a crust on any utensil or glass in which it stood. Besides, the well was a drilled one, very deep, and the pump was too hard for a woman to use. When we moved to a farm with another deep well, but a wind pump, we supposed our troubles were over. However, the windpump broke and our landlord did not replace it. I fastened a piece of iron pipe to that pump handle to give more leverage so that we could pump it by hand, but getting water was always a dreaded task.

We spent six months in town, with city water on tap. It was easy to get, but flavored with chlorine. We had plumbing to look after and water bills to pay.

The last place where we lived, the well water was excellent but we had no cistern, and it would not suds without use of alkaline powders.

Now we have the spring, with a pump in the kitchen sink. The first time my wife did a washing here I found her beaming. She is one of those women who likes water and soapsuds. "Now I can really wash!" she exclaimed. "How white this nice clear water makes the clothes!"

Which brings me back to where I began. Aside from its beauty, its limpid music, its unending supply—and the symbolism which attaches in our minds to a spring gushing from sandstone rock—our spring has proved its usefulness. We are satisfied. Our friends are bound to hear a lot about the spring.

CHAMBERLAIN FOLLOWS BUSY DAILY ROUTINE

Tea at 7:30 Starts Off Day for Britain's Premier; He Works 16 Hours.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Promptly at 7:30 each morning a manservant knocks on a bedroom door in number 10 Downing street, London and takes in a cup of tea. Neville Chamberlain's day has started.

By 8:30, having bathed and shaved, the British Premier, is as a rule eating a substantial breakfast. For him, it is his best meal of the day.

Nine o'clock finds him walking in St. James's Park, situated only a few hundred yards from "No. 10." During present times, this is virtually his only outdoor exercise.

At all times a methodical man, Britain's Premier has re-planned his daily routine since war-started, but the changes are few and unimportant. A daily meeting of the War Cabinet, over which he presides, is the most important change.

Returning to his Downing street desk, he tackles the innumerable departmental reports that have arrived. They are brought to him by trusted messengers in steel-lined boxes. These boxes can only be opened by himself and other Ministers of the War Cabinet, who receive copies of the documents.

Each morning, the Ministers who comprise Britain's War Cabinet gather with Premier Chamberlain in the Cabinet Room. There they review the current situation in strictest privacy.

A routine item is Premier Chamberlain's daily telephonic consultation with Edouard Daladier, France's Premier. This as a rule precedes the War Cabinet's meeting. He is, therefore, able to review the situation accurately to them.

He attends various big functions, although there are few these days. He is present, if circumstances permit, at all important sessions of Parliament.

Wednesday Busy Day.

Wednesday is a busy day for him. On that day he as a rule gives his weekly war statement to Parliament. This is based on day to day reports from various departments.

If anything, the war appears to have given him new strength, although occasional attacks of gout confine him to his room. Even then he keeps in full consultation with other Ministers.

Few and short are the trips he makes to the Chequers, country home of British Prime Ministers in Buckinghamshire, for the Cabinet meets on Sunday like any other day. The week-end shooting parties and fishing jaunts he used to like to take in pre-war days are now out of the question.

Nowadays, he spends at least sixteen hours in continuous application to affairs of the state, but nevertheless he maintains much of his peace-time routine.

At all times of the night he is awakened to receive messages of importance, but even though he may have been kept awake all night, he can be seen swinging his umbrella as he strides through the park at his customary hour the following morning.

If work is going to win the war, Britain's Prime Minister would appear to be a good favorite.

'Thunder' And 'Lightning' For British

Two big Polish destroyers, the Grom (Thunder) and the Blyskawica (Lightning), which escaped the German blockade, get steam up, ready for action, at an undisclosed English port. The Polish nation has been absorbed by Germany and Russia, but Poland continues to fight, her warships having become part of the British navy.

British Rum to Be Rationed Out as 'Air Raid Reviver'

LONDON—(INS)—The rum ration, hitherto restricted to soldiers in the trenches, was ready today on the British home front to be used as an "air raid reviver."

While rum is not in the official list of equipment, many Air Raid Precaution first-aid posts are keeping it handy as a restorative for persons suffering from raid-shock.

"The attitude of the ministry of health is one of benovelent neutrality," it was explained in A. R. P. circles today.

"One reason why rum was not included in the official list was that there are 3,000 of these first-aid posts, and, although all are valuable, many are in places where the probability of raids is comparatively small.

"It is assumed that most of the more exposed, or key, posts will use part of that discretionary margin for a supply of rum, but at this stage it is not considered necessary to lay down a rigid rule on the subject."

The rum issued to the British troops is a special blend, thicker and heavier than that in ordinary use, and it goes out in special earthernware jars.

EASY FOR REPORTER

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn.—(U.P.)—The easiest story newspaperman C. H. Wallace ever covered happened in the front yard of his home. While he was writing in the sitting room, two automobiles collided, crashed a fence and came to a stop on the lawn outside his window.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

INSURANCE DECLINED

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—Directors of the Golden Gate bridge, completed three years ago, and which bridges the Golden Gate entrance from the Pacific ocean into San Francisco bay, are not expecting an attack on the United States from the sea. They declined to take out a $35,000,000 insurance policy against war hazards.

LIFE ON MARS? 'POPPYCOCK,' SAYS VETERAN U. S. STARGAZER

(By International News Service)

DENVER—When Mars swerved within a mere 36 million miles of the earth late in July, it bore out a Denver astronomer's contention that life on the planet is still theory and probably just a little ridiculous.

With scientists throughout the universe, Dr. Albert W. Recht, director of the Chamberlain observatory at Denver University, sneaked a "close-up" of the much-heralded approach of earth's fiery neighbor. Dr. Recht viewed Mars through the observatory's 27-foot, 20-inch-lensed telescope.

After the phenomenon, as before, Dr. Recht stuck to his belief that tales of barrel-chested men living on the planet are pure imagination. Assumptions that there are huge public works on Mars likewise were termed "poppycock" by the veteran star-gazer.

"Hope of ascertaining presence of life on Mars by looking through a telescope is pretty thin," Dr. Recht said. "Consider that viewing the planet through this instrument is equivalent to looking at something 10,000 miles away with the naked eye.

Dr. Recht admitted the presence on the planet of markings termed "canals" has been confirmed both by photographs and unquestionable authority.

"But," he declared, "there is a definite possibility they may be optical illusions from a geometric standpoint."

Dr. Recht pointed out that photographs of Mars require so much time that the planet moves during the exposure which may possibly produce the effect of geometric symmetry. Dr. Recht said he has seen the "canals" and doubts that they may be man-made works.

"Viewing them requires deep concentration for an extended period," he explained. "It is not unusual when looking fixedly at something for a long time that spots and conformations may take on a definite design. This has been tested and found true by placing various spots on a globe at a distance from observers and then have them study it at length.

White House, Hoover Clash on Relief Post 'Offer'

EX-PRESIDENT IN DENIAL OF 'WHOLE STORY'

But Roosevelt's Secretary Says He Had Been Invited to Head War Relief.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The White House revealed today that Herbert Hoover, former president, had been offered and apparently refused a post of general manager of American relief activities on behalf of war-torn European countries.

Stephen T. Early, secretary to the president, reported that before the outbreak of the European war President Roosevelt had suggested to American Red Cross Chairman Norman Davis to contact Hoover to see if the latter would accept such a post.

Apparently, the former president did not want to accept this office, according to Early.

'No Word of Truth In It,' Hoover Says.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Former President Hoover today denied emphatically that he had received or rejected an indirect invitation from President Roosevelt to become active head of all American relief activities.

"There's not a word of truth in the whole story," declared Hoover, head of the recently created Finnish relief fund, when asked about a published story asserting he had rejected the invitation extended through Red Cross Chairman Norman Davis because the former president wished to participate in the 1940 political campaign.

Asked if such an invitation ever had been extended, Hoover asserted with emphasis:

"There is absolutely no truth to the whole thing."

The story which the former president denied also stated that he had proposed to become head of the Red Cross drive for funds, a post now occupied by Davis. In reference to this Hoover said:

"Mr. Davis is a capable man and no suggestion ever has been made that he be deposed. I certainly would be the first to oppose such a move."

'Sticking to My Knitting,' Davis Says.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Red Cross Chairman Norman H. Davis declined comment today on a published report that former President Herbert Hoover turned down a post as head of all the nation's relief activities because he wants to participate in the 1940 presidential campaign.

According to the reports, Davis was described as being the official who conveyed President Roosevelt's purported invitation to the post to the only living ex-president. Hoover reportedly declared he did not want to become identified with the New Deal because of the forthcoming presidential campaigns.

"I'm just sticking to my knitting," Davis said when asked for confirmation or denial of the report.

Crestline Lodge To Fete Kiddies At Theater Party

CRESTLINE—Children of the Crestline community up to the age of 12 years are to be the guests of Crestline aerie, F. O. E., on Saturday morning, Dec. 23, at the Crest theater for a Christmas party.

An appropriate picture will be shown the children after which the annual treat given by the Eagles will be presented to all in attendance. The entertainment committee headed by Phil Bausch will be in charge.

Plans for the party were completed at a regular meeting of the Aerie Tuesday evening with President O. P. Tracht presiding and 60 in attendance. One petition for membership was balloted and accepted and six new petitions read.

A resolution was passed to honor the 69th birthday anniversary of Conrad Mann by working for a class of candidates from Dec. 15 to Feb. 1, 1940. The aerie only needs 11 more candidates to double their allotted quota for the year, which will make 144. They hope to fill this quota by Dec. 15.

A number of local members expect to make a visitation to a meeting of the Loudonville aerie, Thursday, Dec. 14.

SEEK RULING ON FLOOD DISTRICT

Taxpayers in Muskingum Area Ask If Project Can Be Transferred to U. S.

Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert today held the future of the Muskingum Conservancy district, which extends into Richland county, as taxpayers in the area clamored for relief from the burden of assessments to maintain the flood control project.

The Ohio attorney general has been asked for an opinion as to whether officials of the district can turn the huge project over to the federal government. Federal officials have agreed to assume the financial burden of the district if Herbert authorizes its transfer.

Property owners in several of the counties in the district have refused to pay the conservancy tax and recently went on a strike in the New Philadelphia area because of what they termed "excessive taxation" to finance the flood control program.

There are 14 large dams in the district, including the Charles Mill dam on the Richland-Ashland county line near Mifflin. More than a score of property owners in eastern Richland county have been paying the tax. Assessments, however, have been discontinued temporarily pending the outcome of the federal government's attempt to take over responsibility for the district.

Federal authorities said it was "reasonably certain" that it will be unnecessary to levy further assessments on taxpayers if the federal government takes over the project.

Set Up Prizes For Annual Christmas Lighting Contest

Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. will again sponsor the Christmas lighting contest throughout the city, in which cash prizes will be awarded for the most artistically decorated homes. The contest is for exterior effects only.

The contest is open to any home in the city, according to Mrs. Thornton Moore, chairman of the Girl Reserve committee on the contest. The city will be divided into six districts and there will be a $5 prize awarded the winner in each district.

There will be eight judges who will view every home in the city between Christmas and New Year. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of artistic effect and originality.

Not only lights but Christmas scenic effects may be used, and these may be in the yard near the the house, Mrs. Moore said. The judging will start Christmas night.

The Y. W. C. A. has been sponsoring the Christmas home lighting contest for more than ten years, a project which has brought about wide-spread decorations throughout the city for the holiday period.

DESCRIBES SEA BATTLE, FLIGHT OF NAZI RAIDER

Eye-Witness Watches British Cruiser and Battleship Exchange Volleys.

(Editor's Note: Following is an eye-witness story of the start of the combat between the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee and three light cruisers of the British navy. It was given to International News Service by Albert Fader, wealthy and prominent resident of Punta Del Este, Uruguay, who witnessed the first stages of the long running battle through powerful binoculars from the watch-tower of his home on the Uruguayan waterfront.)

By ALBERT FADER

(As Told to International News Service)

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay—I was taking my usual morning observation of the ocean through powerful glasses from the watch-tower of my home yesterday when a ship which I later learned was the Graf Spee came within view.

As the vessel came over the horizon, I saw that she was heading northward, evidently with every ounce of speed of which she was capable.

I calculated that at the time the German vessel was approximately 25 miles off shore.

On the heels of the Graf Spee were three smaller craft which I judged to be cruisers.

The first of them, which later turned out to be the Exeter, was several miles ahead of the others.

With the Graf Spee and the Exeter only a couple of miles apart, both racing madly along the same course, I suddenly saw a puff of white smoke billow out from the German vessel.

I thought this marked the opening of hostilities, for it looked like gunfire, but it developed later that the Graf Spee was attempting to lay down a smoke screen.

This had hardly begun to take shape above the surface of the water when I began to hear heavy detonations. I counted twelve of them, some of which came from the Graf Spee and the balance from the Exeter.

In the pause that followed, I saw black smoke arising from the British ship. I immediately formed the personal opinion that one of the German shells had found its mark amidships aboard the Exeter.

I believe I was the first and perhaps one of the very few persons to see the start of this combat, and I suppose I must take responsibility therefore for first giving the impression that one of the British vessels involved in the battle had been sunk.

Five minutes after this apparent blow was struck, the firing ceased, and all ships disappeared from view, this time taking a westward course.

Some time later, I again heard heavy gunfire which lasted for half an hour, but by this time the ships were out of range of my binoculars.

GALION—A son was born Wednesday morning at the Good Samaritan hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gelvin of Grove avenue.

Other recent contributions to the fund were $192.40 from the Thanksgiving day football game, and $4 by the Needles Eye Sewing club. NAVY DIRIGIBLE BROKEN APART TO AID SCIENCE

Once Proud Los Angeles to Be Converted Into Junk Pile Shortly.

(By United Press)

LAKEHURST, N. J.—The decommissioned navy dirigible Los Angeles will be piles of junk within a month. The once queenly ship is being sacrificed to science.

The former ZR-3, brought here from Germany where it was built in 1924, is undergoing a series of experiments designed to aid in building lighter-than-air craft. The final test made on the craft will be complete demolition.

The dirigible's nose torn out by force to test the strength of light aluminum alloy girders, the fabric covering torn away for inspection, the giant maid of the air lies awaiting the final experiment—the tearing apart with weights of the skeleton to test the strength of girders under pressure.

Wind Tests Made.

Commander Jesse L. Kenworthy said the ship had been undergoing tests for several months. It has been repainted, the parts dismantled and reconstructed, hauled on the airfield for wind-resistance tests.

The navy department recently authorized dismantling of the ship, which has been in the hangar here since July, 1932, when it was decommissioned after eight years of service.

The dirigible, which has been viewed by many thousands of visitors at the air station, cannot be seen now because orders to close the field to the public went out shortly after the outbreak of war in Europe.

From German Reparations.

Built in Germany in 1924 as part of Germany's reparations payment to the United States, the Los Angeles was flown here by Dr. Hugo Eckener, renowned German designer and authority on lighter-than-air craft.

On Nov. 25, 1924, the ship was christened by the first lady of the land, Mrs. Grace Coolidge, and started on its life trip of more than 140,000 miles.

The Los Angeles has been used throughout its life for experiments by the navy. It was the first lighter-than-air craft to be used in an experiment to hook airplanes to its underside.

With it, at various times on their visits to this country, have been berthed the German ships Hindenburg and Graf Zeppelin, which exploded and was destroyed while landing May 6, 1937.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD
(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

FABIENNE was reminded of Nicky standing at her elbow when he said to Bill, "You look as if you could handle them single handed. There are three trunks and seven pieces of smaller luggage."

"Righto," Bill answered cheerfully. "Go right on up. I'll have them up in a jiffy."

"Make it snappy," ordered Nicky. "Miss Seymour wishes to leave shortly."

Fabienne listened to this exchange with dismay. Whatever had got into Nicky to behave this way. Suddenly she knew, and she said apologetically, "Dr. Mallory, meet an old friend of mine from home, Nicky Bartlett."

Nicky's well-bred face showed instant chagrin. He'd taken this great, coatless fellow to be the superintendent. "Sorry, old man," he said, offering a friendly grin with his hand. "Bad light, you know."

"Forget it," Bill answered, crushed Nicky's hand in his.

Irritated for no good reason, Fabienne said, "Come on upstairs, Nicky. "And when they were up in the apartment and Bill was struggling with a trunk at the turn of the stairs, "Why did you say that I was leaving shortly? I'm not going any place."

"But you promised Mirabel you'd see her later."

"I've got a headache, Nicky. Tomorrow's Sunday. We can put it off until then. Besides, I must do a lot of unpacking. Please run along."

"I'll be darned! A few hours ago you were delighted to see me. Now it's 'Please run along, Nicky, me lad.' What's come over you lately, Fab?"

"I'm sorry, Nicky. I do behave badly. But I was glad to see you."

"Fab still loves Nicky?"

"Of course Fab still loves Nicky," she said, looking up at him affectionately, laughingly.

Her face was turned up like a flower. He bent over to kiss her on her cheek. But her mouth was red and tempting. He kissed her once and then again, lingeringly. She tried to push him away, hearing a sound at the door.

Bill Mallory stood in the door frame, looking embarrassed and something else that she was too confused to recognize.

He had seen the kiss, but he had not seen her feeble effort to push Nicky away. He had heard her say that she loved Nicky.

He said, "Sorry, folks, but you'll have to get a park bench until we get the trunks in. Two more coming up." He pulled one in with a yank of a powerful arm and went out again without looking at either of them.

Fabienne looked at the door through which he had passed. Then she turned around to Nicky and her cheeks were pink, her eyes hot. "I've changed my mind, darling. I will go back with you. I'd rather do my unpacking tomorrow. Come along."

To Bill, on the landing, she said. "I'm going with Nicky. Thanks for everything, Bill."

"It's nothing at all. Have a good time," he answered with cool politeness.

* * *

After the door closed in back of Nicky and Fabienne, and the big car rolled away smoothly, Bill Mallory sat on the landing step and groped for a pack of cigarets. He lit one thoughtfully and said, "That's that, my boy."

In the town car Nicky was saying, "You and Cleopatra and your 'infinitive variety'! There's one thing about you, Fab, that never fails to fascinate me."

"Yes?" she said absently, her thoughts busy elsewhere.

"Your weather-vane decisions. One minute you will, the next minute you won't, or vice versa. Anyway, I'm glad you decided to come."

"Oh, THAT!" she answered. "I—I decided my headache wasn't too bad after all." Her statement was a long way from being truthful. She had decided that if she found herself alone in the apartment with Bill Mallory she'd find herself bleating that she was not in love with Nicky and the kiss he'd seen didn't mean anything.

And after that little idiotic outburst, she thought, Bill would give her a long look of surprise that plainly said it meant nothing to him and why was she telling him all that.

Oh, no, she didn't intend to let herself in for anything like that.

She must be very careful to see Bill only when Ellen was there. A friendly little threesome.

Nicky took her hand and her instinct was to pull it away. Instead, she said to him, "Nicky, I wish you'd try to be fascinating to me."

Nicky gave her a bemused, puzzled glance.

"My heart and my hand, not to mention a few trifling lares and penates, are yours for the asking, darling."

"I know," she said wearily.

"How do you know? I've never really asked you to marry me."

"That I'd be waiting around."

She nodded.

"I am," he said dolefully. "But a chap sometimes gets tired of waiting too long. Some other girl might come along and find me a prize."

"If she did, darling, I'd probably snatch you myself."

"The trouble with you, Fab, is that you don't appreciate me."

"Maybe that is my trouble," she agreed, laughing at him. "Is that what you want in a girl?"

"That's what every man wants—appreciation. And when he gets it, it doesn't much matter whether the girl is a beauty like you—or some plain little gal like Ellen Chapman."

"Why don't you go to work, Nicky? Maybe I'd appreciate you then. Your life is such a waste. You can't spend your whole life playing polo, hunting, sailing, flying!"

"Don't you see, Fab—you want me to go to work because you think it's the right thing to do. That hasn't anything to do with me. I'm doing things that are right for me. I don't have to work and you haven't given me any good reason for doing it."

His words reminded her of something Aunt Edna had said:

"Nicky might do it for some girl if he had to work to gain her estimation. Another girl, perhaps. But if he'd been going to do it for you, he'd have done it long ago."

Nicky hadn't noticed her silence. He was continuing: "Interesting looking chap, Mallory. Friend of yours?"

"Ellen's beau. Didn't I tell you?"

* * *

And Bill was telling Ellen: "She's gone."

"What do you mean, Bill? Was she alone? Going to a party?"

"Don't know. She was with a fellow—Nicky Bartlett. Know him?"

"Only from hearing Fabienne talk about him. He comes from Maryland."

"What's he do?"

"Work? Nothing. He's one of the millionaire Bartletts of the tobacco family. He's been trying to marry Fab for the last eight years."

Bill tamped tobacco into his pipe with thoroughness. "Looks as if he wouldn't have to wait much longer."

Ellen laughed. "You don't know Fab. She's very fond of Nicky, but she told me that she loves him like a brother and wouldn't dream of marrying him."

Bill's eyes changed from gray to blue. He said, "No?"

Ellen smiled at him, shaking her head. "No, Bill. Clear field and good luck to you!"

POILIUS' WIVES TO SHARE PAY

Paris Judge Rules Soldiers Entitled to Part of Mates' Earnings.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—French soldiers at the front have the legal right to demand that their wives make them an allowance.

In a decision a Paris judge ruled that the wife of a second class private had to share her income with him. The wife is paid $80 a month for a government job. Of this, the judge ordered, $5 a month must be sent to her husband.

The case started when the private, an actor in civil life, wrote to the judge that he was mobilized the first day of the war and "my wife has since failed to write me a single letter or send me any money. This means I have to get along on my ordinary army pay of 75 centimes (about one and a half cents) a day."

Basing his decision on Article 212 of the French civil code which provides that a husband and wife must help one another particularly "in times of distress," the judge ruled:

"A husband who has left his home to fight for his country has the right to expect that his wife should send him what she can to improve his means of buying comforts and his way of living.

"This is all the more so when one realizes there are many wives depriving themselves to send things to their husbands at the front."

BERLIN — (AP) — Sherlock Holmes and similar detective story favorites have fallen into sudden Nazi disfavor.

Some sections of the press maintain that the majority of the detective stories are written by Englishmen. Hence, every pfennig spent on them enriches Germany's enemy, England. The press, therefore, urges that Germans give up reading thrillers by Conan Doyle, Edgar Wallace and other British authors.

WILL IN CELLOPHANE

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.)—One of the most unusual wills ever entered for probate here was reported when Mrs. Laura H. Morrow's last testament was presented—written on heavy cardboard in longhand, and covered with cellophane. Her estate was $8,500.

NEW COLD-WATER SUDS SAVES STOCKING COLOR

Women rave how new type suds keeps hosiery colors keener and brighter . . . Not a soap, and thus contains no alkali to fade colors. An amazing improvement on even finest soaps and soap flakes, because it suds perfectly in cold water.

4 VIRTUES OF VEL NOT IN ANY SOAP:

2. NO ALKALI TO FADE COLORS
3. NO COTTONY AFTER-LOOK FROM SOAP-SCUM
4. NO ACID OR ALKALI TO IRRITATE HANDS

EVERY woman knows how tough hot water and soap-scum can be on stockings, woolens, and all fine things. But here's thrilling news! Vel . . . the amazing new cold-water suds perfected by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company . . . does away with these enemies of fine fabrics.

Vel is not a soap. It is an entirely different washing principle. Vel is one hundred times as soluble as soap in cold water. Vel contains no acid or alkali to damage and fade colors and Vel leaves no soap-scum to dull colors and make silks cottony-looking. Thus, Vel is ideal for all fine fabrics, because it dissolves instantly in cold water to make mountains of billowy, cleansing suds.

See your stockings keep their delicate sheerness and fresh color amazingly longer when done in Vel's cold suds. See woolens and underwear regain bride-like freshness. Colored prints sing with radiant sparkle. Dishes and glassware glitter with highlights. See for yourself that Vel leaves no ring around the bowl. That shows no ruinous soap-scum can stay in dainty things to cause cottony after-look. So, try Vel . . . the amazing, instant cold-water suds today. Buy Vel today at any grocer's. Made and guaranteed by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company.

FORCES PLUNGE INTO OKLAHOMA REPEAL BATTLE

Bitter Campaign Likely to Continue at Hectic Pace Until Spring.

(By United Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—Repeal forces, fighting prohibitionists as well as bootleggers, are waging a torrid campaign to legalize liquor in Oklahoma, one of the three remaining dry states.

Oklahoma turned thumbs down on a repeal proposition three years ago by an overwhelming vote and has stayed dry along with Kansas and Mississippi.

This time, however, the repealists are proposing to balance a state deficit with liquor revenues and are generally considered in a better position than they were in 1936.

May Vote in Spring.

Gov. Leon C. Phillips, an avowed dry, announced he would submit the question at a special election probably in the spring if other initiated measures are ready for a vote.

After an initiated petition, amending Oklahoma's constitution, is circulated, prohibitionists may challenge the signature before the state supreme court.

Phillips' promise to submit the question if other issues are ready for a vote brought a storm of protest from prohibition leaders.

Many of them refused to support Phillips last year because, as a state legislator, he was co-author of the act legalizing 3.2 beer. W. L. Losinger, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, charged that Phillips has deserted the dry cause and is playing into the hands of the wets.

Dry leaders who did support Phillips say the governor is only following the "principles of democracy" in agreeing to submit the question to a vote.

The governor's political enemies, including A. L. Crable, state superintendent of schools, and U. S. Sen. Josh Lee, quickly took advantage of the governor's slight concession to repealists by declaring themselves ready to stump the state against legal liquor.

The proposed repeal amendment would provide for state control, with a commission directing enforcement.

Bootleggers, running liquor into Oklahoma from Missouri and Texas, were said to have contributed heavily in the 1936 campaign to stave off repeal.

'Missing' British Fliers Recognized In Newsreel Shot

LONDON —(INS)— Two of the British airmen shot down during the raid on the Kiel Canal have been recognized in a news-reel showing part of a German internment camp.

The two men, Squadron leader S. S. Murray and Pilot Officer A. B. Thompson, were earlier officially reported to be "Missing, believed prisoners of war."

A non-commissioned officer of the same squadron as Murray and Thompson recognized the two men when he saw the newsreel during a visit to the movies.

With the fiancee of Thompson, and Murray's wife, the N. C. O. saw the film again and definitely recognized the two missing airmen.

A print of the film was made and sent to the squadron headquarters.

RED CROSS TOPS QUOTA BY 700

Final Roll Call Figures for County Set at 10,700, Gain of 1,100 Over Last Year.

The Richland County Red Cross topped its Roll Call quota of 10,000 memberships by 700, according to the final report made to the executive board yesterday by L. W. Birch, Roll Call chairman.

This figure represents an increase of 1,100 members over last year and brings the county's per capita membership up to 16.08 per cent. Shelby contributed 2,347 memberships.

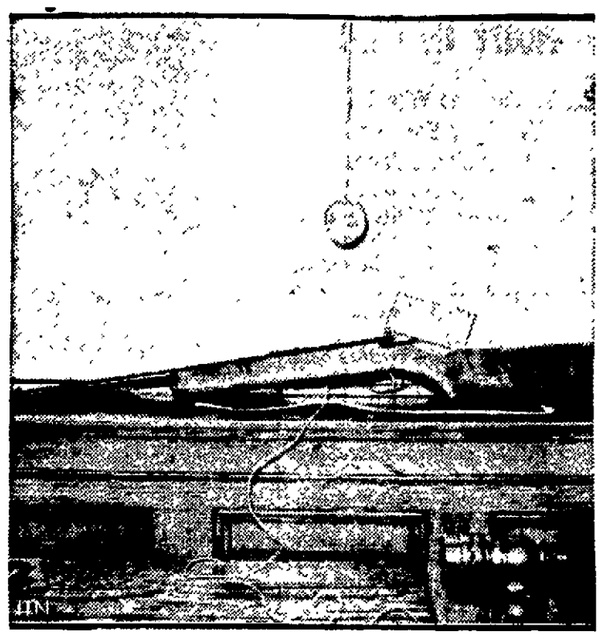
Roy Spetka, chairman of the county chapter, said the excellent showing was made possible only through the increased volunteer work of Roll Call canvassers, and clerical workers. A telegram to the chapter from Everett Dix, assistant manager of the Eastern area, told officials that Richland county chapter's excellent showing was "again an inspiration to other chapters in the area."

The volunteer work contributed to the Red Cross during November totaled 8,167 hours, or almost three years of 8-hour work days

This unusual amount of contributed hours came through the membership drive, the Junior Red Cross' work and the Polish war relief sewing and knitting. Besides the work, the chapter contributed $300 from its operating fund to buy materials for dresses and sweaters for Polish refugees.

Did They Die In Modern William Tell Game?

Daniel Hackett



The clues . . . an apple and the rifle.

Norval Harrison

Were Scoutmaster Daniel Hackett, 29, and Boy Scout Norval Harrison, 15, of Elizabeth, Pa., playing a "William Tell" game when Harrison was fatally wounded by a .22 rifle in the Hackett home? Police investigating the fatal shooting of Harrison and the apparent suicide of Hackett theorized they were when they found an apple in the scoutmaster's room, hanging from the ceiling by a string tied to the stem at about the height of the boy. The scoutmaster shot himself while his father was investigating the shooting of the Harrison boy.

THEATERS

EDDIE CANTOR'S first starring picture for M-G-M will be "Forty Little Mothers," which is based on the original French story "Monsieur Petiot." . . . Ruth Hussey, the pretty newcomer of the past year, has been signed to a long term contract by Metro and you'll be seeing more of her in bigger roles. In fact, she has just finished the feminine lead in "Northwest Passage" with Spencer Tracy. . . . Wallace Beery, too, is one of the lucky ones to sign another long contract. The big diamond-in-the-rough has been in pictures since the days of old Essenay in Chicago, where Billy Anderson was the Western star. Very few stars in pictures today hark back that far in the industry. . . . Neil Hamilton, a screen "matinee idol" of the 1920's is seen in the next "Crime Doesn't Pay" short which is titled "Pound Foolish." . . .

* * *

Stage Show at Madison.

Although Freddie Stritt is billed as the only Yankee in the stage show "South American Nights," the spectator gets the impression that the majority of the entertainers are from territory far, far north of South America. Stritt works hard as the M.C. and provides a good share of the entertainment in the stage show which remains through today and tonight at the Madison. There are three top circus acts of tumblers, globe rollers and a wire walker. Carlos and his band provide music in the "Sowse American Way." A chorus and several dancing acts round out the stage show. The picture "20,000 Men a Year" provides some unusual flying thrills.

* * *

Screen Babies Meet.

Two of the screen's "immovable forces" come together in "Call a Messenger," which will be shown tomorrow only at the Ohio. The Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys join forces for a lot of action and drama. Contrary to their usual screen behavior they are on the side of law and order this time. They all get jobs as messenger boys in order to keep one of their number from the Reform school, but it is the charm of Anne Nagel (not to be confused with the English Anne Neagel) that does the trick.

* * *

Historical Incident.

A spectacular incident in the early history of California is brought to the screen in "Mutiny On The Blackhawk." The Blackhawk is a slave running ship plying between the Sandwich Islands where it picks up natives, and California, where the natives are sold into slavery. Richard Arlen plays a government man sent to investigate and Andy Devine is his aid. Constance Moore has the leading feminine role. The picture will be shown at the Ritz tomorrow and Saturday, along with a Roy Rogers Western.

* * *

Arlen on Park Bill.

Richard Arlen is also featured in "Let 'Em Have It," on the Park screen the last half of the week. Virginia Bruce and Bruce Cabot are also on the featured list of players. Lucille Ball forsakes comedy in her latest picture, "Panama Lady," the second feature, to play a straight dramatic role. Steffi Duna is seen as a Latin American dancer, and Allan Lane is a young American who causes most of the conflict between the two girls.

* * *

Big House Story.

The prison story, "6,000 Enemies," heads the bill at the Majestic for the last two days of the week. Walter Pidgeon as a crusading district attorney is framed and sent to prison by a vice lord of the city. In prison, surrounded by the men he has convicted and sent up, his life is menaced at every turn. Rita Johnson has the role of a girl he sent to prison. The second feature is a Western, "The Stranger From Texas."

"Dear Santa: I'd Like"

Not so many more days until Christmas and little Deane Baker of Cleveland is making sure Santa Claus won't forget him. Deane wanted several things, as do millions of other little boys and girls.

80 KILLED, 200 HURT IN BLAST

Entire Families Wiped Out as Chemicals Explode in Rumanian Village.

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST—Eighty persons were killed and 20 others were gravely injured today in an explosion at a cellulose plant under military control at Zarnesti.

Many of the injured were feared to be dying. Whole families were wiped out in their sleep by the early morning blast of an overheated 1,000-gallon kettle of chemical.

A high wind spread the flames and carried chlorine fumes over the village.

Many inhabitants fled to the woods but numerous families living near the factory were snuffed out. Among them were the families of 100 factory directors and an engineer.

The casualties included all of the plant workers.

Many townsfolk, including small children, were overcome in their sleep.

A railway train which pulled into the station near the factory about the time of the blast was hastily abandoned by the passengers. The engineer and two station attendants who remained at their posts met death.

Firemen of surrounding towns and soldiers in gas masks battered down doors to drag hundreds of unconscious persons to safety.

Sweeps Winner Aids Others

Winner of a $150,000 prize in a sweepstakes drawing, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mason of Philadelphia will put a large part of their winnings into building model apartment houses for other Negroes in the slums district from which they came. The Mason family is shown in their new, but modest, $3,000 home they purchased.

Demands Congress Inquiry In Charge NLRB Aided CIO

MINE UNION'S CHIEF CLAIMS RIVAL FAVORED

Resumes Testimony Today After House Probers Hear of 'Order' to Shoot Organizers.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Joe Ozanic of the Progressive Mine Workers of America, (AFL), today demanded a congressional investigation of his charges that the National Labor Relations Board helped John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union obtain nationwide union shop contracts covering bituminous mining.

Ozanic's demand was placed before the house committee investigating the NLRB as he continued his testimony on labor strife in the industry and his charges that the labor board favored the rival Congress of Industrial Organization union.

The committee also was confronted with a controversy as to whether Van A. Bittner, veteran UMW and CIO leader, told UMW organizers in West Virginia to shoot down PMWA organizers "faster than they would shoot a rabbit." NLRB Regional Director Philip S. Phillips at Cincinnati said he did. Bittner denied it.

Committee Counsel Edmund M. Toland read into the committee record a memorandum from Phillips to NLRB Secretary Nathan Witt in October, 1938, in which Phillips said Van Bittner had told his organizers at a Labor Day meeting in Charleston, W. Va., in 1938 to "treat a progressive organizer with more contempt than they would a Pinkertin fink, and shoot them down faster than they would shoot a rabbit."

Bittner said the memorandum was "absolutely untrue and was manufactured out of whole cloth."

Ozanic said he believed a congressional inquiry into the "sudden about-face" of coal operators in granting Lewis' union a union shop clause after a conference with President Roosevelt at the White House would bear out his charge that the operators "received assurance from some one, either from the conciliators of the labor department or from the NLRB itself or others that the board administering the . . . (Wagner) act would see to it that no action would interfere with the contract, nor allow any other union to displace the United Mine Workers."

Mechanical Man On Flying Trapeze Opens Show Here

Remember the "Man on the Flying Trapeze"—the smoothie of the Gay Nineties who "done the lady wrong?"

He opened a special mechanical engagement today at the J. P. Cochran Paint company, 12 East Third street, and will fascinate the ladies—hasn't he always?—every day from now until Christmas, except Sundays.

The Cochran store is bringing the mechanical circus to Mansfield as its Christmas offering to customers and children of the city.

The store will be given over entirely to the "bi-i-g pu'formance" and during the show there will be no sales made unless by specific request. The continuous show is free and open to the public.

Not only is the "Man on the Flying Trapeze" operated mechanically, but there is the usual circus audience, all mechanized, including the lady who was fascinated by his smooth performance and smoother talk, the coy lady who keeps peering over her fan, the ever-present drunk who bobs back and forth to the motion of the man on the trapeze, and the low lout who not only smokes in the presence of ladies but keeps his hat on.

The entire first floor of the store will be given over to the show with most of the merchandise moved to the basement and second floor.

It wouldn't take Charles W. Ricker, 283 West Fifth street, long to get his limit in rabbits if he could consistently pull the trick he did yesterday. Hunting with Van Sheehy and C. R. McKee, north of the city, Ricker noticed rabbits coming from opposite directions. He aimed at the nearest one, and as he pulled the trigger, the other rabbit crossed into the range of the shot. The result was two dead rabbits with one shot.

The holiday spirit invaded the courthouse today when a huge Christmas tree, a gift of the county commissioners, was erected in the main lobby of the building. Donations from county employes provided funds for the tree lights and decorations and girls from the offices, assisted by Custodian Anton Moritz, decorated the tree. About 17 feet tall, the tree reaches the ceiling of the lobby. This is the second year the commissioners have furnished a courthouse tree.

END HEARING IN SLAYING CASE

Michigan Engineer Awaiting Verdict in Charge He Killed Wife While in Home.

(By Associated Press)

MT. CLEMENS, Mich.—Testimony on the wife murder charge against Herbert F. Patterson was completed in justice court yesterday, but a verdict appeared unlikely for several days.

Justice Frank E. Jeannette, who conducted the two-day lower court examination, announced it would be at least ten days before he would decide whether to hold the 48-year-old automotive designing engineer for circuit court trial.

The state, which accuses Patterson of stabbing his wife Farrell, 46, to death last Oct. 26 in their suburban home, presented Dr. Le Moyne Snyder, state police medico-legal director, as its last witness.

Dr. Snyder testified there was no way of telling whether a "minute" amount of blood found on clothing owned by Patterson was human blood.

Justice Jeanette indicated he would set bond to free Patterson in view of the "unusual circumstances" in the case. Patterson has been held in jail since his arrest Nov. 25.

MUSKINGUM TAXPAYERS AWAIT OHIO RULING ON DAM TRANSFER

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The future of the Muskingum conservancy district rested today in the hands of Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert as taxpayers pressed for relief from the burden of assessments to maintain the flood control project in 18 central Ohio counties.

Key to the problem apparently rested in an opinion requested from Herbert as to whether officials of the district held the power under present laws to turn over to the federal government the 14 dams and adjacent lands contained in the flood control project. Federal authorities already have agreed to accept the district and place it under the jurisdiction of the war department.

Plight of the taxpayers in scores of communities which had pledged support to the program was outlined at a joint senate-house committee hearing at which several requests were made for a special session of the legislature in January to deal with the problem.

The committee, headed by Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R., Tuscarawas), adjourned until the week after Christmas to await a ruling from Herbert on the matter. It was explained that if the district had the power to deed the project to the federal government, the problem would be solved.

Action on the investigation was forced by the Muskingum Valley association, a taxpayers' group, headed by C. L. Lodgsden, of Zanesville. Representatives from other cities in the district attended the session to present their views on the flood control project.

Husband of Woman Injured in Crash Gets Judgment.

A jury in common pleas court last night awarded B. W. Eddy of Chesterland, O., a judgment for $4,100 in his action for $10,000 damages for injuries received by his wife in an automobile accident in Mansfield a year ago.

The judgment was against two defendants, Harold Geitgey of Elyria and Frank Kuentz of Cleveland, drivers of two of the cars which figured in the three-car crash. Eddy had accused them of negligence. He was driving the car in which his wife, Mrs. Grace Eddy, was riding.

The jury deliberated three hours and 10 minutes before returning its verdict at 6:40 p. m. yesterday. The trial opened Monday morning.

Attys. Weldon and Huston, Mansfield, and Williams, Williams and Reynolds of Cleveland were Eddy's counsel. The defendants were represented by Atty. George H. Blecker, Mansfield; F. C. Long and Robert Green of Shelby and J. M. Hengst of Columbus.

CITY'S PROGRAM DOUBLED; MORE PUT ON ROLLS

Officials Say Situation Not Solved; Measures Only Aid Most Desperate Cases.

TOLEDO — Ohio's relief troubles smouldered here today as other large cities reported their problems apparently over for the rest of 1939.

Council doubled the city's relief program, allowing about 3,000 persons to be added to the rolls before Christmas and an increase in benefits to those already receiving help. The spending limit was boosted from $50,000 to $100,000 monthly.

However, Clarence A. Benedict, relief administrator, commented:

"This does not mean the crisis is ended. It only alleviates the most distressing cases, and does not really provide adequate relief."

Speaking before council, David Lasser, Workers Alliance president, declared "Toledo has a bad name. It is becoming known as a bread-line city."

Lasser also issued a statement describing as "a series of gross and malicious falsehoods" charges made by Rep. White (R-Ohio). White charged Lasser with announcing he was going "to lead his left-wing group . . . in a march on the office of Gov. Bricker."

The Alliance president, who discussed the Ohio relief situation with President Roosevelt several days ago and told reporters he was "going out there" to investigate, said:

"I did not threaten a march on Columbus. If your (White's) blood boiled half as much over the hungry people in your state as it does over the petty politics you play, we would not have this situation today."

Situation Called Disgraceful. . .

In Washington, Lloyd Keith, national secretary of the Workers Security federation, said he was advising Ohio units not to join in any united front activities with the Workers Alliance. The federation is an organization of unemployed and WPA workers.

Keith, however, declared that the Ohio relief situation was disgraceful and the federation members in the state should organize their own demonstrations.

The Republican National committee, in a statement from Washington, accused the Roosevelt administration of "distortion of truth . . . in regard to the Ohio relief situation.

"Press and radio reports from Ohio by non-partisan, objective observers in the last few days," the committee said, "establish the baseless nature of the charges which outstanding New Dealers have made against Gov. Bricker."

President Roosevelt, Secretary of Interior Ickes and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York have criticized Gov. Bricker for his handling of the problem, including his refusal to call the legislature into special session.

Columbus put in a strong bid to get the grangers to return here next year but Cleveland won out by a vote of 204 to 97.

2 UNHURT IN TRUCK CRASH

Drivers of two trucks escaped injury at 1:30 a. m. today in an accident on route 224 at the Huron and Ashland county line. The trucks, driven by John Swartz, R. D. 1, Shelby, and Eugene E. Heck, Urichsville, sideswiped in the center of the road, according to a report of state highway patrolmen, causing little damage to either truck.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Soviet Minister to U. S. Makes Poor Showing as Compared to Finn Envoy

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON—The dignity of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is personified in the United States by Constantine Umansky, a former journalist propagandist and press censor and occasional interpreter for Josef Stalin.

He is small and may be described as prepossessing only at a ruthless sacrifice of candor. For contrast he may be compared to Hjalmar Procope, the Finnish minister—a tall, handsome man of around 40 years, with a brave, manly bearing and a following in Washington which amounts to a menace to American neutrality.

Mr. Umansky's personality is not endearing, and his reputation has been heightened not only by the memoirs of those who knew him as a pushful, opportunist clerk in Moscow when he was worming his way through the government bureaus but also by events parallel to his services here.

The mere sight or mention of His Excellency stirs recollections of his former chief and predecessor, Alexander Troyanovsky, once an officer in the Czar's cavalry.

Troyanovsky was recalled to Russia, and his status apparently amounts to open arrest. Doubtless Umansky himself will be yanked back one day and, not unthinkably, stood against a wall, like so many others.

To say that such a routine move in the Moscow foreign office would wet a single eye in Washington, Moscow or anywhere else would be to venture into prophecy and irresponsible opinion. It is much less chancy, however, to predict that he, in his turn, will be recalled, undone by the spying and whispering of confidants in his own household in the big, rich embassy.

As for Mr. Troyanovsky, though he did have charm and something which, for lack of a more precise word, may be set down as decency, it can only be said that his removal and such further reverses as may have befallen him in Moscow serve him right. A man of his intelligence and advantages must have known that he was slumming and that he must expect treachery.

He once appeared at a formal dinner in white tie and tails, while Comrade Earl Browder, seated down the board, wore a common business suit and bounced out before the meal was over in exasperation over remarks flung at him by Norman Thomas, one chair removed. Good manners are a serious deviation from the party line, and Troyanovsky not only behaved acceptably in Washington but gave scandal by associating with the bourgeoisie in Sarasota, Fla.

The Soviet ambassador should not make a mug of the first comrade of the American branch of the conspiracy, but no doubt Troyanovsky did find unbearable the company of his comrades in the U. S. A. and crossed the line in sheer desperation.

Comrade Umansky runs less risk of deviation in the same manner, but there are other fields in which one may be guilty of grave—indeed, even fatal error—in the Soviet foreign service. One may be guilty of a racial fault, as the new German comrades of the Moscow government would put it, and many of those who have been liquidated in the last few years were guilty of that fault.

Comrade Umansky's closest colleague nowadays is Comrade Thomsen of the Nazi embassy, but if he should prove racially unacceptable to Comrade Thomsen no mere personal considerations or regard for distinguished service in the peculiar ways of Soviet diplomacy would be allowed to stand in the way of harmonious efficiency.

Others in Umansky's corps have been shot for fraternizing with the Nazis, but now that Stalin fraternizes with them a race-wrong diplomat might be picked for liquidation as a gesture of solidarity with Berlin.

Irresistibly the thought of His Excellency Umansky and Dr. Procope of Finland conjures the spectacle of Umansky's country assaulting Procope's. And this, in turn, suggests a mental picture of a more intimate conflict—a personal one between Umansky and the manly, honest, clean-scrubbed Finn. That is a beautiful picture, suitable for framing.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—They're remaking "Bill of Divorcement." New faces, new director, new treatment. Katharine Hepburn is a stage star now, John Barrymore is disporting himself in Chicago for a seemingly indefinite run of his play. Billie Burke, who was very serious in that old picture, has returned to twittery flutters for the screen.

The opening of the old "Bill of Divorcement" was a movie thrill somewhat comparable to the raising of the first curtain on a hit play. It was just a picture until suddenly the screen was taken over by a presence, a personality. A slim, raw-boned metallic-voiced girl came bounding down a high stairway calling "Father, father!" I believe those were the words, but they didn't matter. The thrill lay in the electric power of her presence. We all knew, immediately, that a new star was born. Katharine Hepburn.

* * *

IT IS thus that most real stars are born. The public knows them instantly, and all the ballyhoo in town won't fool the public.

Ingrid Bergman did that to us in "Intermezzo." A background figure in her first scenes, she moved steadily up front, and she held the screen whenever she was on it. She was a personality, and more—she was an actress.

The roles count heavily, true. Just another ingenue, and none too interesting, was Bette Davis until "Of Human Bondage." What she had done until then was of no consequence, because the Davis of that picture was a brand-new "discovery."

Jane Bryan scored somewhat the same bull's-eye in "We Are Not Alone." Jane was no new face, nor was her triumph unexpected. From her first bit role to this, her step to stardom, she had been advancing as an actress. She has been on all the lists of "starlets to watch" since she made "Kid Galahad," and in "The Old Maid," she justified expectations. Given a dramatic, emotional banquet like "We Are Not Alone" on which to feast, she registers freshly and importantly—to those who have not seen her work before, she, too, will give the "thrill of discovery."

* * *

THE apparition of Hedy Lamarr in "Algiers"—so fraught with promise as yet unfulfilled—was the same old story with unhappy variations: a public excitement so great, and so over-fed on Lamarr jokes, that her eventual new appearance needed to be a hundred times more satisfying than "Lady of the Tropics" to save her from panning. (Private theory: Hedy took another look at "Lady" and decided to call off her strike.)

Luscious Linda Darnell was another first-picture knock-out. No great shakes as an actress yet, she has a head-start on many another better performer by virtue of her arresting beauty. She'll need more than looks, but she's making a good start for her 16 years.

There's no movie thrill quite like it—this sighting of new personality or talent. And that goes whether it's a first view of a little girl who sings and becomes famous as Deanna Durbin; or a little tyke with curls who, you learn, is Shirley Temple; of a brat with bangs who can be identified as Jane Withers; or of a personable rodent billed as Mickey Mouse.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

The night clerk at Philip Veritzen's hotel, who apparently was "doubling in brass" as a telephone operator, was distinctly forbidding in tone when he answered my request to speak to Philip Veritzen.

"Mr. Veritzen has retired for the night," he said. "I would not dare to waken him."

"He will make you regret it, I am afraid, if you do not awaken him at this summons," I said frigidly. "And you need not worry. I have known him for many years, and I am sure he is not asleep, but reading."

"Who is speaking, please?" he asked, plainly perturbed, but still unyielding.

"Tell him Mrs. Graham is speaking for her guests, his friends, and that it is most important."

"This will probably mean my job," he said gloomily.

"No, it won't," I retorted, "but it surely will if you don't give him this message."

"Well, he conceded, "if you'll take the responsibility."

"I'll do that," I said impatiently, "but do hurry. You should realize that I am not calling Mr. Veritzen as a pastime, and that the message is urgent."

"Okay," he said, and in another few seconds, during which I could imagine the thunders—and lightning—of Jove were playing around the head of the hapless night clerk, I heard Philip Veritzen's voice, a bit shaken from its usual poise, but inflexibly sounding the courteous chivalrous note.

"My dear Mrs Graham!" he exclaimed. "How terrible for you to have to be up at this hour! But—has anything happened to Olga? The clerk said your mesage concerned my friends, so I assume Noel—Mary are all right."

"Nothing is wrong at all," I said. 'I must ask you to forgive me for using your friends as an excuse to induce the night clerk to let me talk to you. He said you were asleep and he did not dare to waken you. I assured him you were not—you have the reputation of never sleeping—and that I had a most important message from your friends. It was the only way I knew to reach you and tell you what I wished to say."

"You are forgiven," he said with relief in his voice. "I must give them instructions that you are to talk to me at any time you wish."

"Thank you," I said sincerely. "And may I asure you that if I could have been sure of talking to you later in the day, I would not have disturbed you now. But I am so terribly fatigued—we just arrived a few minutes ago— that I am afraid once my head touches a pillow, I shall not awaken all day. And I felt that I must let you know at once that I have returned, and that it will be perfectly all right for you to bring your company out tomorrow for the rehearsal you wish."

"Oh! I am so sorry you are so fatigued," he said. "And do not worry about the rehearsal. Much as I should like to have you present, it would hardly be necessary for the first scrambling together. Wouldn't it be possible for them to come over tomorrow for a first 'get together'? Then when you saw them the next day, things would be ironed out."

He was so suave, so plausible, that for the fraction of a second I hesitated, trying to make my own voice friendly. Then I steeled myself with the remembrance of the plot I was sure he was concocting against Mary, and spoke with crisp emphasis.

"I am sorry to be obstinate," I said, "but surely you cannot have forgotten what I told you before I left. I cannot possibly permit Mary to rehearse without my being present. If you wish to have the cast come over here, and rehearse without her being present, I can have no possible objection, but she must not appear until tomorrow, when I can be with her."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

JUST USE SUBTRACTION

YOUR OPPONENT has only thirteen cards in his hand. If he has shown by his bidding that he holds some ten cards in two suits, he is bound to be short in the others. And if you or your partner should have length in one of his two suits, his partner is sure to be not overly long in it. Such being the case, it is positive that they can kill off some of your side's honor cards which otherwise might be good defensive trick takers. When these factors exist, it is well to think twice before doubling them.

	♠ K Q 4 3 2 ♥ 10 9 8 7 6 ♦ J 10 9 ♣ None
♠ J 9 8 7 6 ♥ 5 ♦ Q 5 ♣ A Q ♣ Q 10 2	W. E. S.	♠ None ♥ J 4 3 ♦ K 8 7 6 4 ♣ 3 2 ♣ A J 9
	♠ A 10 ♥ A K 2 ♦ 5 ♣ K 8 7 6 5 4 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

East gave a nice present to North and South on this deal by doubling their contract. South had bid 1-Club, West 1-Spade and North doubled. East took out with 2-Diamonds, which passed around to North. The latter bid 2-Hearts. South 3-Hearts, and North 4-Hearts. There is where East stuck in his double, which he followed with a lead of the diamond 6 to the A.

West promptly shifted to a spade, which East ruffed, following with a lead of his club A, as he was now desperate to prevent an overtrick. It did him no good, however; in fact, less than no good. To his consternation, North trumped, led to the heart A, ruffed a second club, led to the heart K, cashed the club K and then ran good clubs and trumps, giving him an extra trick.

As it turned out, the fact that the contract was doubled was worth an extra 290 points to North and South.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 9 ♥ A K 8 7 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ 10 8 4 3 2
♠ 3 ♥ 4 ♦ Q 9 8 6 5 ♣ A K Q J 9 7	W. E. S.	♠ A K 8 6 2 ♥ Q J 6 5 ♦ K J ♣ 6 5
	♠ Q J 10 7 5 4 ♥ 10 9 3 2 ♦ A 10 7 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West bids 1-Club, East 1-Spade, West 2-Diamonds, East 2-Hearts, West 3-Diamonds, East 3-Spades on this deal, why should West now bid 3-No Trumps instead of 4-Clubs?

HOROSCOPE

FOR FRIDAY, DECEMBER 15.

A MODERATELY active day, with some progress made with new matters, is forecast by the predominant planetary configurations. But there is grave danger of treacherous situations, which may retard advancement unless unusual precautions are exercised. The attack may be in the nature of a surprise, impelling sudden change and disrupting a friendship. There also may be reactions on the health. Be alert, and guard the physical condition.

Those whose birthday it is may have some modest success with new affairs during the year, but they are subject to sudden attacks of duplicity or trickery, which may have reactions on friendship and health. These should be safeguarded with wisdom. However, there are to be pleasant compensations of a social nature.

A child born on this day may be fairly energetic and practical, but may lean toward social talents and graces. Perhaps its health may not be up to par. It should receive early supervision.

Wife Preservers:

Use a long-handled dustpan to save backache. It does the work as well as the short-handled variety.

THEME FOR FAIR

ROME—(INS)—Corresponding to the trylon and perisphere of the New York World's Fair, the "theme center" of Italy's world exposition opening in 1942, will be a mammoth aluminum arch 325 feet high and with a span of 765 feet. The arch will contain steps and fair visitors will be able to reach the zenith of the arch for a panoramic view of the exposition.

AT BLACKSTONE HOME.

Nine members of Triple E circle met with Mrs. Martin Blackstone, Park avenue west road, Wednesday evening and enjoyed contests which were won by Mrs. Anna Wagner and Mrs. J. W. Gilkison. The members exchanged Christmas gifts. Later a luncheon was served with appointments in red and green, and individual favors marking the guests' places. The next meeting, the date of which will be announced later, will be held at the home of Mrs. Gilkison, 571 Springmill street.

Formal Party Event Of Nomad Club Schedule

A formal party was held last night by members of the Nomad club for their husbands and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black, Millsborough road. The house was decorated with holiday appointments and red candles. Members went to the games room where Mrs. J. C. Wilson gave a program.

She gave the reading of the "Cape Cod Stories of Christmas Days" by Joseph Lincoln. Refreshments were served at the close of the program. The next meeting will be held Jan. 10 with Mrs. Harry Cave. Mrs. Charles H. Keating and Mrs. James E. Gibson will present the program.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Remedy at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Name Richland Tavern Owner in Copyright Action.

A Richland county tavern operator was one of two Ohioans named defendants today in copyright infringement suits filed in federal court in Cleveland by two New York music publishing firms.

Associated Press dispatches from Cleveland said Santly-Joy-Select, publishers, charged Frank Breiner, operator of the Bazooka tavern, R. D. 2, Shelby, with violating the copyright by playing "Between a Kiss and a Sigh" for dancing at the tavern without permission of the copyright owners. The firm seeks $250 damages.

Harms, Inc., another publisher, accused Paul Judko, operator of Yankee lake park at Bookfield station, of permitting musicians to play 'South American Way" without the plaintiff's approval. The company also asks $250 damages.

BULL TEAMS WITH MULE

TOWANA, Pa.—(U.P.)—Paul Williams boasts of an unusual team of a seven-year-old bull and a six-year-old mule — a supposedly irreconcilable combination—doing general work on his farm. Williams says the team has worked together peaceably for four years.

SECOND TO DIE

Injuries Suffered in Mountain Crash Fatal To Trucker.

The second victim of an accident near Altoona, Pa., in which a large trailer-truck failed to negotiate a mountain curve and plunged down a 15-foot embankment was reported yesterday.

He is Luther Owens, 26, of Payne, O., the driver, who died from a skull fracture. The first victim reported Tuesday in press dispatches as Verne Mabis, 26, of Mansfield, was identified today as a Mansfield, Ill., resident. Directories here showed no one by the name of Vern Mabis lived in Mansfield.

Grid Star Tackled By Cupid

Cupid makes a nice tackle of Andy Farkas, star back of the Washington Redskins, pro football team, and comes up with a Mrs. Farkas. The bride is the former Ellen Ryan of Detroit, where the ceremony took place.

2 LESS CASES

Contagious Diseases Decrease in City During November.

Communicable diseases in Mansfield during November showed a slight decrease as compared with the number of cases reported in October, Dr. Roy Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said today.

Last month 58 cases of contagion were recorded by the health department while 60 were reported in October, Dr. Rehder said.

The greatest drop was in scarlet fever with seven cases reported as against 18 for the month previous. There was 31 cases of chickenpox, four of pneumonia and three each of measles and tuberculosis.

There were 81 births recorded in November to bring to 764 the number reported in Mansfield for the first 11-months this year. The report also showed 46 deaths during the same period.

RIDES TO JAIL

ROME, Ga.—(INS)—A youth stood on the Summerville road near Rome to thumb a ride. Along came an auto driven by two men who didn't mind giving the stranger a lift. But the lad proved to be no stranger, at least, not to County Policemen Burton and White, the men in the auto. And the lad's lift was a free ride to Floyd county jail, where he was booked as Clemons Jones, 19, an escaped convict.

Santa and the TALKING DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR: Leezen, a doll that was made by the fairies for the King of Westphalia, has run away from the castle in search of Eric, the son of Lightning, who plays a magic flute.

* * *

CHAPTER 10

Three Trolls

THERE was not a friendly fairy or bird or fox in all that big forest to help Leezen the doll where she stood And she, poor dool couldn t help herself because she could neither talk nor move until the midnight hour struck again

She stood quite alone until just before dusk when there were shouts and rumbling through the trees If only Leezen could have heard them she might have hidden But she stood silent, and there she was found by three very old trolls who were going home They had been out all day looking for pieces of gold They had looked for gold so long that they walked hunched over and their big hands hung down to their knees

"Sh, look ' whispered one troll as he spied Leezen "A Princess ! We'll take her home and make the King give us gold for her return '

"Oh gold gold," mumbled the other two

They crept up to the doll on their hands and knees Their little squint eyes never left her face Then one straightened up and said, very astonished "Why she s asleep or blind"

"Are you blind?' shouted another Leezen neither moved nor nswered So the trolls lost their fear of her and scampered up One felt her pretty dress between his boney fingers Another ran his finger over her pretty blue slippers. The third stood still and grinned

* * *

Not Very Nice.

"Come," said the first "let's tie our coats together and carry her home" So they knotted their coats together, swung the corners up on their shoulders and put Leezen into the crude hammock Then they tramped home singing,

Oh, we frighten babies in their cribs,
We poke the Rector in his ribs
We encourage people to tell fibs,
Oh, the life of a troll is a merry one

You can see these little men were not very nice Their home wasn't very nice either It was just a cave with a fireplace They used rocks for chairs and pine needles for beds And in the center was a great pile of gleaming gold they were keeping for goodness knows what reason

They stood Leezen near the fireplace and had dinner and then they sat quarreling for a silly reason

"We will ask her father for a hundred pounds of gold"

One troll said, "We must find this princess's father and then we will ask him for a hundred pounds"

"No, we'll ask for two hundred pounds," said the second troll.

"No, three," said the third.

* * *

Not Strong Enough.

"Three hundred pounds!" snorted the first disdainfully. "You're not strong enough to carry three hundred pounds." Of course, none of them were strong enough, but the troll to which this had been said looked very fierce and said, "I can carry an oak tree in one hand, and a pine in the other"

"Pooh," said the second, "I can carry a horse on one shoulder and the carriage on the other."

"Ho!" said the third "I can carry a team of oxen and dance at the same time '

"You can't"

"I can"

And with that the three trolls were all so angry with each other that they began to fight, and they got so mixed up that they rolled around the floor

Just then the moon touched the top of the sky and it was midnight Leezen's eyes fluttered open She was so frightened by what she saw that she wanted to run But the trolls fought at her feet So she closed her eyes and stood very still so the trolls wouldn't know she could talk after midnight She wondered if she could stand that way all the long hours until dawn

Tomorrow: Eric goes to seek Leezen.

BAFFLES POLICE

RICHMOND, Ind —(INS)—Tactics of a strange burglar have mystified S G. Shepherd, of Richmond, and local police.

When Shepherd went to a shed at the rear of his home, he found that someone had broken into it, but had taken nothing.

Instead, the intruder had left a load of furniture. Shepherd is at a loss to determine where it came from or to whom it belongs.

A policeman who investigated reported, as follows:
